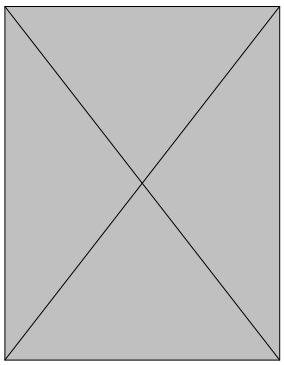
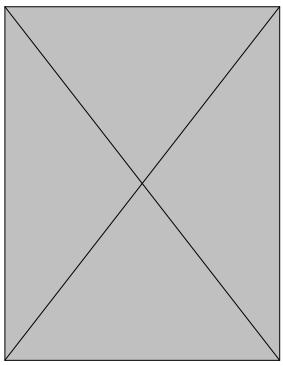
FEATURED PAPERS



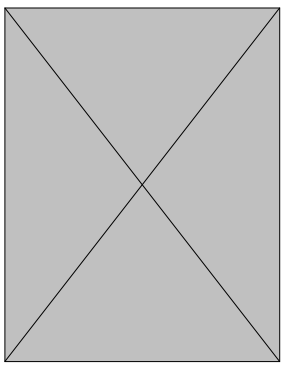
Smart City, Safe City

Intelligent Transportation Systems (ITS) are transforming the way vehicles move through busy cities and traffic corridors. How can the latest technology be applied to make roads and crosswalks safer for the people in your cities on your roads?



Building Smarter, Safer Railways

As Americans continue to flock to urban areas, rail is expected to play an increasingly important role. “Smart city” infrastructure and emerging rail safety innovations will ensure that tomorrow’s railways are safer, more efficient and more reliable. This white paper includes rail and the smart city, rail safety opportunities, smart rail technologies and the future of smart railways.



Which Comes First, the Enterprise or the Workforce Solution?

Public sector organizations are under constant pressure to spend their budgets wisely, and many turn to technology to help them not only operate more efficiently, but better manage key processes to reduce waste and improve effectiveness. However, these technology solutions require a significant investment of time, resources, and of course, money. As a result, organizations must think critically about how and when to undertake such projects, so as not to overwhelm employees or disrupt services. Conventional wisdom may point organizations to start their journey with the biggest system – the ERP.

Citizen-Centered Service Delivery

This paper explores Citizen-Centred Service Delivery and concepts that provide government the opportunity to:

- Provide good service when it is needed
- Lower cost of delivery than is incurred today
- Achieve improved outcomes for individuals, their family and the country as a whole

Hi Mayor! Two years ago (yes he kept the email!) Jon Ralston asked us about this whether you were considering returning the money he gave your campaign, and after talking with you we responded you were aware of the issue and would wait and see what the outcome of the investigation is,
Now that he has been indicted Jon wants to know whether you are planning to return the money he donated to your campaign.
Feel free to call me if you want to chat, I wanted to email you this so you had the PDF.

INVESTMENT COMPANY EXECUTIVES INDICTED FOR $1.5 BILLION PONZI SCHEME

WASHINGTON – The president and chief executive officer and two former Asia-based executives of a Las Vegas investment company were indicted today for their roles in an alleged $1.5 billion Ponzi scheme.

Assistant Attorney General Leslie R. Caldwell of the Justice Department's Criminal Division, U.S. Attorney Daniel G. Bogden of the District of Nevada and Special Agent in Charge Laura A. Bucheit of the FBI's Las Vegas Division made the announcement.

"The defendants allegedly preyed on thousands of unsuspecting Japanese victims to enrich themselves by operating a billion-plus dollar Ponzi scheme," said Assistant Attorney General Caldwell. "This prosecution shows that the Criminal Division will pursue not only those who victimize American citizens, but also those who use the U.S. as a home base to defraud victims abroad."

"Investment fraud and other financial fraud cases are a high priority for the U.S. Attorney's Office in Nevada," said U.S. Attorney Bogden. "These defendants are accused of using a Nevada corporation to conduct their $1.5 billion fraud scheme and falsely telling thousands of overseas victims that their investments would be safely held and managed by an independent, third-party escrow agent in Nevada. Fraudulent ruses and schemes perpetrated by Nevadans using Nevada corporations and entities will continue to be addressed by this office."

"These indictments are a reminder of the FBI's determination to identify, investigate and bring to justice those who are committing financial crimes against innocent consumers," said Special Agent in Charge Bucheit. "We are appreciative of the continued support we receive from our international, federal, state and local law enforcement partners."

Edwin Fujinaga, 68, of Las Vegas; Junzo Suzuki, 66, of Tokyo; and Paul Suzuki, 36, of Tokyo, were charged in an indictment with eight counts of mail fraud and nine counts of wire fraud. Fujinaga also is charged with three counts of money laundering. The indictment seeks from all three defendants forfeiture of the proceeds from the alleged crimes.

Fujinaga was the president and CEO of Las Vegas-based MRI International Inc. (MRI). Junzo Suzuki previously was MRI's executive vice president for Asia Pacific, and Paul Suzuki previously was the company's general manager for Japan operations. MRI purportedly specialized in "factoring," whereby the company purchased accounts receivable from medical providers at a discount, and then attempted to recover the entire amount, or at least more than the discounted amount, from the debtor.

According to allegations in the indictment, from at least 2009 to 2013, Fujinaga and the Suzukis fraudulently solicited investments from thousands of Japanese residents, and MRI currently owes investors over $1.5 billion. Specifically, the indictment alleges that Fujinaga and the Suzukis promised investors a series of interest payments that would accrue over the life of the investment and that would be paid out along with the face value of the investment at the conclusion of the investments' duration. The defendants allegedly solicited investments by, among other things, promising investors that their investments would be used only for the purchase of medical accounts receivable (MARS) and by representing that investors funds would be managed and safeguarded by an independent third-party escrow company.

The indictment further alleges that MRI operated as a Ponzi scheme, wherein the defendants used new investors' money to pay prior investors' maturing investments. According to the indictment, the defendants also allegedly used investors' funds for purposes other than the purchase of MARS, including paying themselves sales commissions, subsidizing gambling habits, funding personal travel by private jet, and other personal expenses.

The charges contained in an indictment are merely accusations. A defendant is presumed innocent until and unless proven guilty.

This case is being investigated by the FBI's Las Vegas Division. Significant assistance was provided by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, the Criminal Division's Office of International Affairs and Japanese authorities. This case is being prosecuted by Assistant Chief Albert B. Stieglitz Jr. and Trial Attorney Melissa Aoyagi of the Criminal Division's Fraud Section and First Assistant U.S. Attorney Steven W. Myhre of the District of Nevada.

GWB Scandal Motive Fight Is Matter Of Timing As Trial Looms

Just days before Monday's long-awaited opening statements of the George Washington Bridge lane-closing trial, prosecutors and one of the defendants went to battle over whether the government may assert that his motives include trying to curry favor with New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie and whether there is even enough time left for this argument to be decided.

ICYMI: Guinn Center Refutes Two Main Claims Made By NV Energy's No On 3 Campaign

Las Vegas, NV - The author of the recently released Guinn Center report recently refuted two claims made by NV Energy's myth-filled campaign.

Meredith Levine, the director of economic policy for the Kenny Guinn Center for Policy Priorities, clarified that Question 3 will restructure Nevada's energy market, not "deregulate" it. Levine also emphasized it was "probably unlikely" that an event like the Enron resale scandal in California in the early 2000's would occur in Nevada if voters passed Question 3.

Bradley Mayer, Yes on 3 Spokesperson said:

"This just adds to the list of myths NV Energy has spread throughout their campaign. The truth is, energy choice will lower costs for Nevadans just like it has done in the other 14 jurisdictions that have the right to simply choose their energy provider."

Background

Don't Call It Deregulation

Guinn Center economic policy director: ballot measure is not deregulation. According to Nevada Public Radio in July 2018, Meredith Levine, the director of economic policy for the Kenny Guinn Center for Policy Priorities said Question 3 meant "We would move to a different system where the ability to select one's retail electric supplier would be possible for the state's residents and businesses," adding that the ballot question "is not deregulation. That is something that is talked about. Deregulation isn't an accurate word as that would mean removing regulation from the market." [Nevada Public Radio 7/19/2018]

Levine: 'there would be these various layers of regulation' if Question 3 passed.
According to Nevada Public Radio in July 2018, Meredith Levine, the director of economic policy for the

Kenny Guinn Center for Policy Priorities was asked if “there would still be some kind of regulation” if Question 3 passed, Levine said, “That’s accurate.” According to Levine:

"The Public Utilities Commission of Nevada currently regulates the investor-owned utility, which is NV Energy, and that could change to some degree in a restructured market in the sense of the legislature would have to decide what role it might continue to have, and one of those roles might be the regulation of transmission and distribution. Another potential regulatory entity that could come into the market is the Federal Regulatory Energy Commission, and that’s again federal, and so there would be these various layers of regulation that would be possible."

[Nevada Public Radio, 7/19/2018]

Erroneous Enron Comparisons

Levine: deregulation in Nevada leading to a situation like the Enron energy resale scandal 'is probably unrealistic.’ According to The Nevada Independent in June 2018, the Coalition to Defeat Question 3 ran an ad warning that the Energy Choice Initiative would lead to “rolling blackouts” like those in California in the early 2000’s. The ad said, “California tried electricity deregulation and found out it’s a costly mistake,” warning that “It led to higher rates, rolling blackouts, consumer fraud and the Enron energy resale scandal, costing Californians billions.” However, in an interview with Nevada Public Radio in July 2018, when asked if “deregulation [in Nevada] will lead to Enron” or “some kind of scams out there where our prices are going to be jacked up based on the whims of the market,” Meredith Levine, the director of economic policy for the Kenny Guinn Center for Policy Priorities, said, “That is probably unrealistic, only because of the adjustments that were made in the post-Enron world.” [Nevada Independent, 6/15/2018 ; Nevada Public Radio, 7/19/2018]

Levine: following Enron scandal, reforms were instituted to maintain reliability. In an interview with Nevada Public Radio in July 2018, Meredith Levine, the director of economic policy for the Kenny Guinn Center for Policy Priorities, said that following the Enron energy resale scandal in California in the early 2000’s, reforms were put in place to prevent similar problems from arising in the future. According to Levine:

"FERC, which again is the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, came through and really instituted some controls in terms of markets and reliability. And so, are there instances where there have been consumer problems around rate hikes, with teaser rates and so forth? Yes, there have, and that’s been a problem in some states, but that’s something different than the actual sort of market manipulation."

[Nevada Public Radio, 7/19/2018]

ABOUT THE ENERGY CHOICE INITIATIVE

Question 3 is a ballot measure to provide Nevadans with options for cleaner, more affordable electricity and will create an opportunity for Nevada to lead the way on renewables, technology innovation, and consumer choice. The measure is expected to grow Nevada's economy through clean technology job growth and innovative new businesses. Question 3 is backed by leading Nevada-based companies such as Switch, Sands, Tesla and MGM Resorts.

ABOUT NEVADANS FOR AFFORDABLE CLEAN ENERGY CHOICES

The Nevadans for Affordable Clean Energy Choices PAC is a statewide coalition representing Nevada voters, large and small employers, community leaders, and consumers with a goal to open Nevada's energy markets and give consumers the option to purchase renewable energy and lower overall energy costs. Visit http://www.yesquestion3.com for more information on Question 3 and the Energy Choice Initiative.

Know The Limits To Atty Public Statements During A Trial

The balancing act between protecting attorneys' speech rights and ensuring unbiased adjudications was highlighted recently in two cases — when Michael Cohen applied for a restraining order against Stephanie Clifford's attorney, and when Johnson & Johnson questioned whether a Missouri talc verdict was tainted by public statements from the plaintiffs' counsel, says Matthew Giardina of Manning Gross & Massenburg LLP. AG Speech To Immigration Judges Endangers Due Process

In a recent address to new immigration judges, Attorney General Jeff Sessions' real message was plain: We made you judges not to apply law to facts neutrally, but to help this administration deal with an immigration problem. It is wrong for him to attempt to directly influence any judge to follow the administration's political script, says Kevin Curnin of Stroock & Stroock & Lavan LLP. Read full article »

Feature

In The Polarized Era Of Trump, BigLaw Searches For Balance

The alignment of law firms with or against the new administration in legal battles to come could open rifts among attorneys and clients. But the publicity earned for taking on a potentially unpopular case could ultimately be worth any public fallout.

Feature

The Lawyer Who Will Shape Trump's Presidency

Jones Day's Donald McGahn is stepping into the role of White House counsel, a powerful but little-understood position that has a strong history of impacting the president's authority.

News Analysis

Most Influential Judges On Trump's Supreme Court Short List

A new look at the potential U.S. Supreme Court nominees' rulings reveals a ranking of judicial influence with some surprises at the top — and at the bottom.

Feature

Rolling Back Regulation In The Age Of Trump

The incoming president's plans to rein in the power of federal agencies will lead to uncertainty for lawyers and their clients as pending investigations and rulemaking are stopped in their tracks.

Obama Leaves Mixed Immigration Legacy

When President Barack Obama leaves office on Friday, he'll be leaving behind a mixed legacy on immigration, having overseen a record number of deportations and controversial detention practices, while helping to temporarily protect DREAMers and update some policies on legal immigration.

Analysis

5 Takeaways From Mnuchin's Treasury Confirmation Hearing

Banks and other financial market players got mixed signals about the incoming Trump administration's plans for financial regulation at Thursday's sometimes testy confirmation hearing for Steven Mnuchin, the president-elect's pick for Treasury chief. Here are five key takeaways from the hearing.

Jones Day Atty Leaves Firm For Possible Gig At SG's Office

A Jones Day partner revealed somewhat furtively on Wednesday that he is leaving the firm, setting off rumors that the conservative legal star will be named to a top position in the U.S. Solicitor General's office by the incoming Trump administration.

Mnuchin Offers Softer Tone On Trade, Countering Trump

For the second day in a row, one of President-elect Donald Trump's cabinet appointees took steps to blunt Trump's more aggressive trade stances, as Treasury pick Steven Mnuchin assured senators Thursday the new administration would be judicious in administering punitive tariffs.

Analysis

Obama's Broadband Legacy Safe, Despite Net Neutrality Woes

President Barack Obama's time in office was marked by unparalleled innovations in telecommunications technology, and experts say his policy legacy in this area will lie in expanding broadband deployment and clearing spectrum for wireless use, even as the fate of linchpin net neutrality rules hangs in the balance.

Aligning With Trump, Senate Dems Unveil TPP Withdrawal Bill

A group of Senate Democrats introduced legislation Thursday that would pull the U.S. out of the Trans-Pacific Partnership in an effort to pressure President-elect Donald Trump to uphold his repeated campaign promise to kill the sweeping 12-nation accord.

Trump Treasury Secretary Pick Pushes For Tax Overhaul

Major tax changes could soon be in the works under U.S. Department of the Treasury nominee Steven Mnuchin, who told a Senate panel on Thursday that President-elect Donald Trump's tax plans would be aimed at a lower business tax rate, as well as restructuring the Internal Revenue Service and massive capital repatriation.

Warren Probes Industry Support For Fiduciary Rule Rollback

U.S. Sen. Elizabeth Warren, D-Mass., sent letters Thursday to more than two dozen banks and financial institutions asking whether they would support plans to delay the U.S. Department of Labor's fiduciary rule for retirement account advisers, suggesting a rollback could hurt the many firms that have already implemented the rule.

Report On Trump's Planned DOE Cuts Takes Perry By Surprise

U.S. Secretary of Energy nominee Rick Perry pledged to back the agency's energy technology research and development efforts at his confirmation hearing Thursday but appeared in the dark about a news report that President-elect Donald J. Trump plans to make massive cuts at the department.

House, SEC End Health Care Insider Trading Subpoena Row

The House Ways and Means Committee and the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission have officially ended their battle over the latter's bid to subpoena an erstwhile committee staffer in a health care insider trading probe, just two months after the committee dropped its appeal.

TCF Bank Tricked People Into Overdraft Fees, Claims CFPB

The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau has sued TCF National Bank for tricking hundreds of thousands of customers into agreeing to costly overdraft services, something the bank took so much pride in that the former CEO named his boat "Overdraft," the agency announced Thursday.

Ex-Speaker Hastert Sues To Reclaim Sex Abuse Hush Money

Former House Speaker Dennis Hastert struck back Wednesday at a civil suit filed by the sexual abuse victim whose accusations helped send the politician to prison, saying that the unnamed individual should return the $1.7 million Hastert paid to keep him silent.

ENERGY & ENVIRONMENTAL

EPA Defends Mercury Cost Analysis At DC Circ.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has told the D.C. Circuit that the agency's U.S. Supreme Court-ordered analysis of the costs and benefits of a rule limiting mercury and other toxic emissions from coal-fired power plants reasonably interpreted ambiguous language in the Clean Air Act.

EPA Stands Firm On 2016 Biofuel Volume Obligations

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency on Tuesday struck down a petition by petroleum refiners to have the agency lower their obligations to buy cellulosic biofuels under the agency's Renewable Fuel Standards program, saying that waiving the 2016 obligations could undermine the program.

'Downwind' States Defend Cross-State Air Pollution Regs

New York and five other "downwind" states urged the D.C. Circuit on Thursday to let them help defend the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's cross-state air pollution regulations from suits brought by upwind states and the energy industry, saying the quality of their air depends on making sure the rule isn't delayed.

Pa. DEP Won't Change Rules For Drilling Through Coal Mines

Pennsylvania environmental regulators said Thursday that concerns over protecting miner safety had led them to reject proposed changes to half-century-old guidelines regarding intersections between coal extraction operations and natural gas wells.

$5B Wyo. Wind Farm Gets Thumbs Up From Interior Dept.

The U.S. Department of the Interior on Wednesday gave two key federal approvals to a $5 billion wind farm being built in Wyoming by a subsidiary of The Anschutz Corp. that is the largest proposed onshore wind project in the U.S.

IP & TECHNOLOGY

Calif. Leads In Executing Clean Car Tech, Study Says

California is leading the U.S. in greenhouse gas reduction and in implementing zero-emissions vehicle technologies, even surpassing the national standards put in place by the federal government, according to a report released Wednesday by the California Air Resources Board.

Miss. Pol Floats Bill To Impose Limits On NCAA Investigations

A Mississippi state legislator has proposed a bill that would set a time limit on National Collegiate Athletic Association investigations of state colleges, as the organization's investigation of the University of Mississippi's athletic programs for multiple alleged violations enters its fourth year.

TRANSPORTATION & INFRASTRUCTURE

Uber, Lyft May Land Feb. 1 At Boston Airport

Ride-hailing companies like Uber and Lyft could start picking up passengers at Boston's Logan Airport as early as Feb. 1, an attorney for the Massachusetts Port Authority told a federal judge Thursday — an announcement that angered the cab drivers who are suing to stop that from happening.

EMPLOYMENT

NJ Lawmakers Advance Bills Tackling Gender Pay Gap

New Jersey lawmakers on Thursday advanced proposals aiming to close the gender pay gap with one bill prohibiting companies that receive state assistance from paying women less than men and another establishing an office to advocate for women in the workplace.

Restaurant Assn. Asks Justices To Review Tip-Pool Rule

The National Restaurant Association on Thursday urged the U.S. Supreme Court to hear a suit challenging a Department of Labor rule that bars restaurants from sharing servers' tips with kitchen staff, saying that allowing the rule would greatly expand agency powers past what Congress intended.

PRIVACY & CONSUMER PROTECTION

Privacy Group Presses FBI On Russia's Election Hacking

The Electronic Privacy Information Center hit the FBI with a lawsuit in D.C. federal court Wednesday, seeking more information on how the agency reacted to reports that the Russian government was attempting to tamper with the U.S. presidential election, a response the group asserted has been characterized as "lax" and "possibly negligent."

INTERNATIONAL TRADE

US, Mongolia Launch Trade Transparency Agreement

The United States and Mongolia on Thursday put into effect a first-of-its-kind trade transparency agreement, the last official act of the Obama administration's Office of the U.S. Trade Representative.

TAX

IRS Gives Guidance For Foreign Partnership, Trust Pacts

The Internal Revenue Service on Thursday put into effect updates to withholding guidelines for income from foreign partnership and trust agreements, updating regulations on the agreements put in place in 2014.

IRS Places Limits On Foreign Partnership Transfers

Certain transfers of property to a partnership with a foreign partner that typically resulted in nonrecognition of gain or loss by the Internal Revenue Service will no longer be treated as such, according to regulations the agency released on Wednesday.

Treasury Weighs In On Border Adjustment Tax

A U.S. Department of the Treasury study, released Wednesday, on a novel tax reform strategy being touted by some Republican lawmakers found that a border adjusted tax framework could have yielded a larger tax base than the current system between 2004 and 2013.

IRS Finalizes Fracking Service Income Tax Treatment Rules

The Internal Revenue Service issued final regulations Thursday leaving largely intact its proposed rules on qualifying income from service providers to the oil and gas industry for master limited partnership treatment, which explicitly granted fracking services access to the favorable tax status.

IRS Releases Final Rules Affecting 2010 Estate Beneficiaries

The IRS and the U.S. Department of the Treasury finalized regulations Thursday that take into account years-old legislation affecting how to calculate the basis in property transferred to beneficiaries from individuals who died in 2010, wrapping up a lengthy rule-making process intended to clarify the issue.

IMMIGRATION

NY AG Issues Guidance For Immigration 'Sanctuary' Sites

New York's attorney general on Thursday released a set of guidelines that local law enforcement may choose to follow should they opt to serve as "sanctuaries" and not cooperate with federal efforts to enforce immigration regulations against those unauthorized to be in the U.S.

DHS Improved Info Security But More Work Needed: Report

The U.S. Department of Homeland Security has improved its information security program, but still has work to do in areas such as making sure security weaknesses are quickly patched and that staff use only protected internet connections, a DHS watchdog said in a report issued Wednesday.

NATIVE AMERICAN

Tribal Justice Grant Program Beset With Delays, DOJ Says

A watchdog of the U.S. Department of Justice has found some ineffective coordination between the office that administers a program that provides grants for the construction of tribal justice facilities and the bureau responsible for funding those facilities' operations, resulting in delays in the completion of those projects, the office said Thursday.

TELECOMMUNICATIONS

Regulator-Targeted Bills Threaten Telecom Sector, Senate Told

Public Knowledge, Common Cause, the National Hispanic Media Coalition and other consumer groups told Senate leaders Wednesday that three en route bills affecting regulators would undermine federal administrative law and endanger communications.

FCC Claims Role In Internet Of Things, Other Cybersecurity

The Federal Communications Commission on Wednesday rolled out a white paper on reducing cybersecurity risks, saying that the FCC has tools to restore a balance between corporate and consumer interests in managing risk if the market fails.

FCC's Wheeler Touts Success Of E-Rate Program

Efforts to modernize the Federal Communication Commission's E-Rate program in 2014 have increased broadband and Wi-Fi connectivity in U.S. schools and libraries, outgoing FCC chair Tom Wheeler told Sen. Ed Markey, D-Mass., Wednesday.

Inmate Call Case Stays On Track Amid Looming FCC Changes

The D.C. Circuit refused Wednesday to pause a challenge to the Federal Communications Commission's attempt to reform inmate calling rates, even as one judge dissented given the coming shift to a new Republican majority at the commission that took issue with the Obama era-move.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

Government Contracts Under The Trump Administration

President-elect Donald Trump will usher in a new era for government contractors, much like Presidents Barack Obama, George W. Bush and Bill Clinton before him. Joseph Berger of Thompson Hine LLP discusses 10 areas to watch.

DOJ Narrows Paths To Immunity For Antitrust Crimes

The U.S. Department of Justice Antitrust Division's leniency program is unique — no other DOJ component offers similar nonprosecution protections for corporations or individuals. Therefore, new guidance released this week limiting pathways to leniency could be seen as part of the outgoing Obama administration's desire to render this program less of an outlier, say attorneys with Hughes Hubbard & Reed LLP.

Health Care Enforcement Review And 2017 Outlook: Part 4

In this final installment of our review and outlook series, we analyze health care enforcement trends gathered from 2016 civil settlements and criminal resolutions of health care fraud and abuse cases. Behind the headlines covering enormous recoveries in 2016, several themes are apparent, say attorneys at Mintz Levin Cohn Ferris Glovsky and Popeo PC.

Trump's EPA: Be Careful What You Wish For

Trying to prognosticate what President-elect Donald Trump will do is very difficult. But assuming he does seek to implement change at the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, if it's perceived as backing off of environmental enforcement, private parties will step in and cases will likely be even more expensive, more problematic and more unreasonable than those brought by the EPA and the states, says Mitchell Klein of Snell & Wilmer LLP.

Obama's Pro-Union Impact On NLRB Won't Retire Quickly

In recent years the National Labor Relations Board has extended its reach into employer operations with controversial decisions that have departed from long-standing precedent. However, while employers may hope the new administration might stop this expansion, with current board members and the general counsel still in office for some time, relief may be slow to come, say Adam Abrahms and Christina Rentz of Epstein Becker & Green PC.

The New IP Antitrust Licensing Guidelines' Silence On SEPs

The new intellectual property licensing guidelines from the Federal Trade Commission and the U.S. Department of Justice — the first update in more than 20 years — largely adopted the revisions proposed last August. Despite requests during the comment period, the agencies did not make any changes to address standard-essential patents directly, say Kelly Smith Fayne and Joshua Holian of Latham & Watkins LLP.

A Look At The Next 4 Years In Indian Affairs

The three previous Republican administrations can be characterized by negative views about federal public lands and federal trust responsibility to Indians and tribes. If more of the same can be expected from the new administration, Indian tribes will have to play defense against federal interventions in their affairs, says Matthew Fletcher of Michigan State University College of Law.

Attracting And Retaining The Millennial Lawyer

Instead of trying to change the new workforce to follow a law firm's existing processes and procedures, perhaps it's time for firms to start changing their processes and procedures to better accommodate the mentality of this next generation of lawyers, says Christopher Imperiale, a law firm adviser with Berdon LLP.

Not What I Signed Up For: California's New Autograph Law

A new California law requires a certificate of authenticity for all autographed items sold by dealers for over $5. Assemblywoman Ling Ling Chang addressed concerns over potential overreach by clarifying that the law was not meant to affect the autographed book and art market. However, courts are not bound to give any credence to those statements, say Daniel Fong and Robert Darwell of Sheppard Mullin Richter & Hampton LLP.

Dentons Apologizes to Client CNN For Story Retraction Ask

Dentons US LLP sent a letter of apology Thursday to CNN for requesting a story retraction on behalf of the Trump administration's proposed health secretary, noting that the law firm also represents the media network.

DLA's 2005 Benefits Plan 'Galactically Stupid,' Judge Says

A California federal judge drilled DLA Piper on its 2005 employee benefits plan that's at the center of a former associate's disability lawsuit, saying during a hearing Thursday on DLA's motion to end the suit that the fact the plan didn't account for associate attorneys was "galactically stupid."

Cybersecurity, Cross-Border Data Weigh Heavily On GCs

Corporate counsel participate more frequently in company cybersecurity efforts and are increasingly challenged by the interplay of international privacy and security laws in cross-border e-discovery, according to a survey published Wednesday.

When A Startup Needs A Lawyer The Most

It can be hard for lawyers to get a foot in a startup's door, partly because the company may not yet have the resources to recruit counsel. Here's how you can adjust to accommodate entrepreneurs' needs and help them through three potential legal minefields.

Law360's Weekly Verdict: Legal Lions & Lambs

Cleary Gottlieb Steen & Hamilton LLP has snagged the title of this week's top legal lion for its work advising eye glass maker Essilor on a newly inked $49 billion merger with the owner of Ray-Ban while King & Wood Mallesons LLP found its way onto the legal lambs list after the law firm's financial woes forced it to file for administration.

'Antiquated' NY Law Harms Legal Profession, ACC Says

An "antiquated" and "protectionist" New York law that requires attorneys practicing in-state to maintain offices there prevents clients from hiring the attorneys of their choice and conflicts with the global, interstate nature of law practice today, according to an Association of Corporate Counsel brief submitted Wednesday to the U.S. Supreme Court.

IP Firm Niro Law To Dissolve After Founder's Death

Niro Law Ltd., the Chicago-based IP boutique founded by noted patent litigator Raymond Niro, is in the process of dissolving, while a small group of partners prepare to launch a new firm and break away from the model of representing nonpracticing entities that became synonymous with Niro Law.

Webinar: EMV Rollout Presents Unique Opportunities for Banks - Register Now >

The rollout of EMV (smart) cards and terminals in 2015 will have a significant impact on reducing card-present fraud. It may also cause a surge in card-not-present or other types of fraud as criminals shift to easier targets.

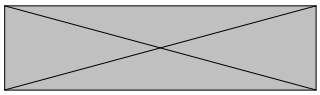
The smart-card rollout presents banks with a unique opportunity to engage with customers. Banks need to be prepared not only to explain what the new cards are and do, but discuss the possible outcomes, and how the bank can assist.

Join us for this 60-minute interactive webinar. We'll update you on the impact of EMV rollout and how best to engage with customers.

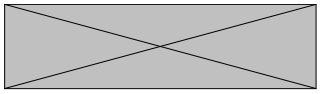
Register now for this free webinar >

This webinar will reveal how banks can:

- Be prepared for the possible outcomes of the EMV rollout
- Reinforce retail customers' trust by communicating with them about the significance of this change
- Strengthen ties with merchant customers



This webinar is brought to you by:



Date: Thursday, January 22, 2015

Time: 1:00 pm EST - 10:00 am PST

Subject: RE: Mr. & Mrs. Mayor - Mon Oct 5 IMLA Luncheon (Rio Hotel)

Good morning all,

I would like to finalize the schedule for the Key Note luncheon on Monday, October 5 at the RIO.

The luncheon begins at 1:10 p.m. – 2:30 p.m. at the Miranda Ballroom.

Oscar Goodman and Mayor Goodman (along with showgirls) will be introduced by Brad Jerbic. The Goodmans will take the stage and speak about their life together as Mayors, Oscars life before Mayor and how they have raised a family and lived in Las Vegas. We would like them to speak for approximately 15-20 minutes.

Jack Eslinger and I will be in the RIO Registration area and will take you into the luncheon.

Please confirm.

THANKS EVERYONE!

Importance: High

Hello Cissy,

Oscar has this event on his calendar, but he said he is only welcoming group and not staying for lunch. He did not mention that he is a keynote speaker. How long were you expecting him to speak and was he to speak with Mayor

Carolyn Goodman or separately? Can you please answer the below questions as well.

Spot/Arrival Time:
Speaking Time and Duration:
Rio Ballroom Location:
IMLA On-site Contact:
Rio Hotel On-site Contact:

Since this is a conference, the Host Committee would have Oscar's signature showgirls with him during welcome and the Rio hotel would need to provide his signature Bombay Sapphire martini with whole jalapeno.

Please advise at your earliest convenience. Thank you.

Feds subpoena Honolulu rail agency

Federal authorities have issued a subpoena seeking documents related to the ongoing construction of a light-rail line in Honolulu, after a local politician implied that fraud has taken place. The Honolulu Authority for Rapid Transportation said it received a subpoena Thursday seeking copies of consultant contracts, archaeological studies, and correspondence between the transit agency and the FTA. HART declined to say which federal agency issued the subpoena, according to local news reports. It's unclear if any of the contractors involved in the project or any local politicians were also subpoenaed. Full Article

Subject: Fraud needs to Stop

Dear Mayor Goodman,
This is the 20th letter I am writing on behalf of myself and Autistic Daughter who has been scammed out if hundreds of thousands of dollars. There should be laws in place to protect us better. My Autistic daughter was scammed out of over 150,000 investment she made in her younger sisters career by a Mr. Wade Martin who claims to know you as well as be a top music producer. He made promises on paper and verbal as well. It makes me ill that people like this get away with taking your money and leaving you high and dry. I was raised by a strict Jewish family where your word meant something. Because this is a transit town, many get away with scams and No lawyers want to help unless you have another few hundred thousand to front them. This was my Autistic daughter's money and she believed in him. I have seen so much and so many go unpunished and I am appalled at the way things are. This needs to change. I was almost killed in 2006 and was awarded a judgment and still can't collect. I am 57 years young. This person never did time. Really this is the Wild West! I can only ask and hope for change. Please please help us before we are homeless. I will be an advocate to all those who are in need. I understand you have a battle of Cancer as well and we can move mountains together. I want so much to meet with you so we can show you and explain that this is not just an ordinary case but an extraordinary case. We need help, please
Respectfully,
Phoenix Neuman

How National Security Auto Probe Redefines Trade Debate

In May, the U.S. Department of Commerce began investigating the national security effects of imported automobiles and automotive parts under a once-obscure statute that has gained notoriety thanks to its use by the Trump administration. While this has led to intense reactions from Congress, the chance of legislative action before the midterms is limited, say Pavan Krishnamurthy and Neil Ellis of Sidley Austin LLP.

Lawmakers Introduce Bipartisan Water Infrastructure Bill

A bipartisan group of U.S. senators on Wednesday announced the introduction of a new piece of legislation to provide increased flexibility to local communities when they are complying with federal requirements for updates to water infrastructure projects.

Reps. Again Float Bill To Boost Funding For Mine Cleanups

U.S. Reps. Jody Hice, R-Ga., and Alan Lowenthal, D-Calif., again floated a bill Wednesday to form a foundation that raises private funding to help the federal government more quickly and effectively clean up mines, citing the Gold King Mine spill as an example of the need for boosted financial aid.

High Court Shouldn't Delay Water Rule Suit, 7 States Say

New York, six other states and Washington, D.C., have asked the U.S. Supreme Court not to pause an appeal of the Sixth Circuit's decision that it has jurisdiction to hear challenges to the so-called Waters of the United States rule, arguing that despite President Donald Trump's executive order to revise or rescind the measure, the case should proceed through the courts.

EPA Ordered To Review 13 Sources Of Air Pollution By 2020

A D.C. federal judge on Wednesday ordered the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to update national emission standards for 13 sources of hazardous air pollutants — which the agency had failed to do as required by the Clean Air Act — by 2019 or 2020.

NJ Water Agency Settles Claims Against Ex-Board Members

EXPERT ANALYSIS

Delays And Uncertainty Surround Trump's Latest Travel Ban

As the constitutionality of President Donald Trump's latest immigration-related executive order is pending, the administration is cracking down on immigration benefits more generally, and employers may want to exercise extreme caution before having nationals of the EO's six designated countries travel internationally, say Maria Fernanda Gandarez and Matthew Kolodziej of Ogletree Deakins Nash Smoak & Stewart PC.

Reducing Administrative Burden Under New 'Common Rule'

The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services' recent revisions to the "Common Rule" aim to reduce administrative and regulatory burden on the informed consent process. However, the revised rule will simply add to or shift such burden to other individuals and entities, say Lisa Rooney and Scott Lipkin of FTI Consulting.

Construction Projects Require Special Contracts In Nevada

Standard form construction contracts and custom contracts developed for use in other states do not comply with Nevada law. When beginning a construction project in Nevada, those contracts must be modified to account for the state's unique construction statutes, says Paul Georgeson of McDonald Carano LLP.

10 Tips For Better Legal Negotiations

Like everything else, the art of negotiation starts by having a conversation. It's about being respectful, finding common ground, knowing what you want and, most importantly, listening. A conversation between two lawyers can be complicated at best, but by employing a few techniques and tactics, it doesn't have to be that way, says Marc Siegel of Siegel & Dolan Ltd.

Greetings:

Please find attached, the recommended list of members for the Mayor's Fund for Las Vegas LIFE Advisory Committee and the draft invitation to the Advisory Committee members. The names highlighted in yellow are the first choice recommendations and the names in white are potential alternates. The goal is to have 11-13 members. We would like to get the letter sent out this week so we can finalize the members by August 1. If you have no objections to the names provided, we will prepare the letters for the Mayor's signature so they can be sent out by this Thursday.

I appreciate your continued support.

Mayor's Fund for Las Vegas LIFE

Dear XXX,

As one of our community's great leaders, I'm writing to invite you to serve on my Inaugural Advisory Committee for the Mayor's Fund for Las Vegas LIFE. Your ideas, input, and enthusiasm are needed to help launch this important initiative that has achieved great success in other cities.

The Advisory Committee of the Mayor's Fund for Las Vegas LIFE ("the Fund") will consist of a diverse mix of community leaders and professionals and serve as the Fund's advisory body. The Committee will provide vital guidance and strategic advice to facilitate the Fund's multi-sector efforts, and help build support for public-private partnerships that will promote systemic change and have a lasting, positive impact on the lives of Las Vegas residents.

Advisory Committee members will provide support by:

- Acting as an ambassador and advocate for the Fund, sharing enthusiasm for its mission and projects
- Making recommendations and providing key information and materials to ensure the success of the Fund
- Serving as an example for prospective partners by making or securing a donation to the Fund
- Identifying community-oriented individuals, companies and organizations within your personal network who may be interested in joining you in supporting the Fund
- Reaching out to those you've identified to encourage their involvement and "open the door" for further conversation
- Bringing unique knowledge and skills to more effectively guide the Fund
- Providing a photo and biographical information for inclusion on the Advisory Committee section of the Fund's website
- Allowing the organization to publicize your name and participation on the Advisory Committee, as well as listing your name on letterhead and other communications
- Attending and participating in triannual meetings, as well as Fund-related events throughout the year to build a dynamic spirit of community between donors

DRAFT

Important dates:

- August 16, 2018, 11:30am: First Advisory Committee Meeting – City Hall
- September 12, 2018, 10:30am: LIFE Event – Location TBD

I hope you'll join us with this important work! Please RSVP to Wendy Fortunato, wendy@moonridgegroup.com and advise by August 1, 2018 if you will join the Committee!

Warm Regards,
Mayor Carolyn G. Goodman
City of Las Vegas

White Paper - Mobile Account Opening: Solving The Convenience-Risk Conundrum - Download White Paper Now >

Mobile devices dominate consumer interactions with financial institutions—except account opening, because of fraud and compliance concerns. The solution lies in using mobile's unique capabilities

Most of the alternative financial technology (fintech) service providers that compete with traditional financial institutions offer digital account opening. It's the easiest and most convenient path between consumers and the financial experience they expect. Mercator Advisory Group analyst Alex Johnson believes banks must add this capability or risk losing new accounts. The challenge is how to design a mobile account opening process that is seamless for the applicant and safe for the institution.

In this Mercator Advisory Group white paper, sponsored by Mitek, you will learn:

- The current state of mobile account opening and why the trickle of new account openings will become a flood
- The conflict between greater customer convenience and the challenge of meeting "Know Your Customer" requirements and controlling fraud
- How the embedded capabilities of mobile devices—image capture, biometrics, and geolocation—can resolve this conflict and improve identification and verification
- Three criteria useful in evaluating the optimal mobile solution

Building a New Community for Special Districts

There over 38,000 special district government agencies in the United States — that's nearly half of all local government entities in the nation. Yet, until now, they've lacked a dedicated forum to share ideas, build relationships and solve common problems. This report details the inaugural year of a new program to recognize and support special districts. The national initiative, an AT&T program with Government Technology, aims to build a community where special districts can connect and collaborate on the issues that matter to them most.

Making H-1B Administrative Changes: Easier Said Than Done

Language in the recent "Buy American, Hire American" executive order suggests that an expansion of visas is not the administration's preference for H-1B reform. Instead it prefers addressing visa shortages by changing how they are allocated. Therefore, the natural question any lawyer would ask is whether the goal of allocating visas based on wage or skill level can be accomplished administratively, says Leon Fresco of Holland & Knight LLP. Texas Loses Case Over Syrian Refugee Resettlement

A Texas federal court on Wednesday threw out a suit over the resettlement of Syrian refugees in the state, ruling that a Texas agency didn't have a basis to enforce a consultation requirement of the Refugee Act.

TELECOMMUNICATIONS

AT&T, Comcast Float Apps Alternative To Set-Top Box Plan

Industry representatives from the likes of AT&T Inc., Comcast Corp. and the National Cable & Telecommunications Association floated an alternative Wednesday to the Federal Communications Commission's plan to unlock set-top boxes, one that would employ apps allowing video viewing on third-party devices.

Sen. Panel OKs Small-ISP Net Neutrality Reporting Exemption

The Senate Commerce Committee approved a bill Wednesday that matches an already-passed House version to exempt internet service providers with up to 250,000 subscribers from enhanced disclosure requirements under the Federal Communications Commission's new net neutrality rules.

Trade Group Slams FCC Network Transition Rules at DC Circ.

The U.S. Telecom Association has asked the D.C. Circuit to ax portions of the Federal Communications Commission's rules regulating the transition from copper to more modern networks, saying that the agency's "regulatory roadblocks" are slowing down the process.

Rural Carriers Group Urges FCC To Keep 5G Competitive

The Competitive Carriers Association pushed the Federal Communications Commission to adopt a tiered structure in its upcoming fifth-generation wireless rule-making, saying Wednesday that large carriers like Verizon, which has a $1.8 billion XO fiber-optic deal pending, could soon gobble up all the spectrum.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

The Texas Citizens Participation Act — 5 Years Later

On June 17, 2011, the Texas Citizens Participation Act was signed into law, a watershed moment that provided greater protection to Texas citizens who have been plagued with frivolous lawsuits aimed at stymieing their ability to discuss their opinions, report on governmental activities or uncover corporate wrongdoing. Today, the trend of state anti-SLAPP legislation is ongoing, says Laura Prather of Haynes and Boone LLP.

Key Points In DC Circ. Decision Upholding Net Neutrality

The D.C. Circuit's decision this week upholding the Federal Communications Commission's 2015 Open Internet Order deals a significant blow to claims that broadband providers either must as a legal matter or should as a policy matter be left to operate largely free of traditional common carrier regulation, says Christopher Savage, co-chairman of Davis Wright Tremaine LLP's communications practice.

The Debate Over NDAA Preference For Fixed-Price Contracts

The Senate Armed Services Committee wants to reallocate risk between the government and the contractor by shifting from cost-type contracts to fixed-price contracts, but some critics believe that its proposals likely will hinder innovation and increase costs, say Charles Blanchard and Paul Pompeo of Arnold & Porter LLP.

Expanded Access — A Regulatory Balancing Act For Drug Cos.

Expanded access plays a valuable role in the treatment of patients, but granting access to an experimental drug outside the context of a clinical trial creates a host of ethical, operational, business and logistical challenges for any drug manufacturer and particularly for smaller companies specializing in treatments for rare diseases, say attorneys with Choate Hall & Stewart LLP.

DOL Salary Projections May Rest On Inaccurate Assumptions

An important component of the U.S. Department of Labor's new white collar exemption rule is that the minimum required salary level will be adjusted every three years. However, the DOL's estimate of an additional 2.5 percent increase in the new salary threshold over three adjustments may not be accurate and likely understates its magnitude, say Stephen Bronars and Deborah Foster at Edgeworth Economics LLC.

States, EPA War In Appeals, District Courts Over Water Rule

A group of states on Friday asked the full Sixth Circuit to overturn a panel ruling that challenges to the EPA's Clean Water Rule belong at the circuit court level, a day after the agency asked a North Dakota federal judge to toss a challenge there in light of the appellate court ruling.

Fed Dials Back On Bank Trading Limit Proposal

The Federal Reserve on Friday released a proposal that would limit the trading any one bank could do with any single firm, giving firms a more liberal method to measure their activities than a previous incarnation and tailoring the rule so that smaller banks would have broader limits.

San Bernardino Families Say IPhone Row Isn't Privacy Issue

Families of San Bernardino shooting victims on Thursday told a California federal judge that Apple paints its opposition to a court order to help unlock a shooter's iPhone as a privacy issue, but the case is about the government's ability to execute a search warrant.

Franken Introduces Bill To End Tax Breaks For Drug Ads

Sen. Al Franken, D-Minn., has introduced a bill to stop pharmaceutical companies from being allowed to deduct from their taxes money spent on prescription drug advertising targeted directly to consumers.

Texas Utilities Ask 5th Circ. To Put EPA Haze Plan On Hold

Texas utilities challenging the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's regional haze plan for Texas and Oklahoma urged the Fifth Circuit Thursday to stay the rule while the litigation plays out, saying it will stick them with hundreds of millions of dollars of compliance costs that may ultimately be unnecessary.

Sheldon Silver Can't Appeal Order Releasing Docs: 2nd Circ.

The Second Circuit told former New York State Assembly Speaker Sheldon Silver on Thursday that the court lacks jurisdiction to hear his appeal of an order unsealing documents from his corruption case over an alleged scheme to gain nearly $5 million in exchange for legislative action and state funding.

EPA Unveils $1.4B Cleanup Plan For Polluted NJ River

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency on Friday unveiled a $1.4 billion plan to remove contamination from New Jersey's Passaic River, a natural resource the agency says is riddled with pollution from a century of industrial activity.

Senate Unanimously Passes Pipeline Safety Bill

The U.S. Senate unanimously passed bipartisan legislation Thursday that calls for minimum standards to ensure the safety of natural gas storage facilities in the U.S. and directs a federal task force to investigate the cause of a recent gas leak in a Southern California underground facility.

DC Circ. Scraps Challenge To Puerto Rico Incinerator

The D.C. Circuit on Friday rejected a bid by environmentalists to scuttle decades-old U.S. Environmental Protection Agency regulations that were used to secure approval for an incinerator project in Puerto Rico, finding the challenge came too late.

HEALTH & LIFE SCIENCES

Justices Pause La. Abortion Law After Hearing Texas Case

Days after the U.S. Supreme Court heard arguments challenging a Texas law requiring abortion providers to have admitting privileges at local hospitals, the justices on Friday reversed a Fifth Circuit order allowing a similar law in Louisiana to go into effect while the state appeals its district court loss.

Medical Pot Bill Rolls On, But Leaves Fla. Senate Frustrated

Frustrations bubbled up as the Florida Senate considered a bill Friday aiming to revise and expand medical marijuana legalization, with several members speaking out over what they see as a growing trend of prioritizing delicate deals with the House over full-fledged consideration of ideas and issues.

5th Circ. Asked To Rehear $20M Aetna Late Payment Suit

A network of Texas hospitals told the Fifth Circuit on Thursday it should rehear and correct its finding that they cannot seek $20 million in late payment penalties from Aetna because a prompt payment law doesn't apply to Aetna's administration of self-funded plans, saying it contradicts the state Legislature's will.

Inside The New And Improved EU-US Data Transfer Framework

For organizations engaged in international data transfers, the good news is that the new EU-U.S. "Privacy Shield" privacy principles are largely aligned with the types of practices found in most global privacy compliance programs and are not a substantial departure from the compliance mechanisms under the Safe Harbor. That said, there are a number of changes that create additional risks for companies that join the Privacy Shield, say attorneys with Hogan Lovells.

Are Attorneys 'Brokers' Under Traffic In Arms Regs?

With the D.C. district court dismissal of Matthew A. Goldstein PLLC v. U.S. Department of State, attorneys are left with only the State Department's pre-existing guidance regarding the scope of the application of the International Traffic in Arms Regulations brokering provisions, especially in regard to attorney-client privilege, say Daniel Pickard and Laura El-Sabaawi at Wiley Rein LLP.

Subject: Dec 21, Reconciling Cigna v. Humble with Aetna v. Humble and their impact on the Out-of-Network Provider

Ted Burton

Dear colleague,

Last year, Humble Surgical Center was involved in two major lawsuits in federal court in Texas. Both these lawsuits dealt with out-of-network (OON) provider issues. In the Cigna v. Humble Surgical Hospital lawsuit, Humble had a major victory; however, in the Aetna v. Humble Surgical Hospital lawsuit, Aetna walked away the winner. What happened, and what do these vastly different outcomes mean for OON providers and facilities today?

Join expert speaker Thomas J. Force, Esq. in this on-demand webinar, "Reconciling Cigna v. Humble with Aetna v. Humble and Their Impact on the Out-of-Network Provider" on Thursday, December 21, 2017, (available all day), where he will examine both these cases in detail. By examining a major OON facility and its experience in court with two ínsurance companies, Thomas will teach you how to properly set up an OON facility's claims processing procedures and billing practices in light of these two important cases.

He will offer advice for OON facilities on how to avoid adverse outcomes regarding balance billing, fee forgiveness and referral deals with physicians. He will outline the strategies and techniques that will help you address the growing concerns that ínsurance companies have about referral arrangements, balance billing and fee forgiveness by OON facilities. This session will provide you with a complete list of essential policies and forms for your facility, and you'll learn about the current best practices for OONs.

Get 1 AAPC CEU per registration.

Session Highlights

- Summary of Aetna v. Humble Surgical Hospital court decision, facts, reasoning and outcome
- Summary of Cigna v. Humble Surgical Hospital court decision, facts, reasoning and outcome
- Discussion of why the cases differed so substantially and what OON providers can learn from them
- Techniques to avoid ínsurance company scrutiny regarding patient billing and referral practices
- Policies to have in place and the current best practices to deal with OON patient billing

Agenda Details

- Facts of Cigna v. Humble, June 2016
- Why Cigna held up claims due to fee forgiveness
- Humble's counterclaim under ERISA
- The court's rulings on Cigna's claim, including on referrals and use fees
- Why it was a big victory for Humble
- Jurisdiction and where this case is precedent
- Impact on OON non-paid claims held up due to failure to balance bill or otherwise collect coinsurance and deductibles
- Impact on OON balance bill audits
- Impact on OON claims, including failure to provide plan documents and other information
- How the court enforced ERISA appeals and claims guidelines
- Facts of Aetna v. Humble, December 2016
- Aetna's claims for money had and received, fraud, negligent misrepresentation and ERISA relief
- The court's holding that the assignments at issue were invalid
- Why the outcomes were so different for the same facility
- What we can learn from the cases

- How to handle referral schemes

Subject: PERSONAL AND CONFIDENTIAL FOR REVIEW BY MAYOR GOODMAN RE: TERRORISM THREAT

The Honorable Mayor Carolyn Goodman:

I am contacting you concerning the information on terrorism below. Due to 2 incidents in Las Vegas and my familiarity with terrorism, I sent the email below to a Las Vegas commander, and have since contacted other commanders, corporate, and a Las Vegas politician with my concerns. Unfortunately, the response was as inadequate as the response the FBI agents, civilians, and well known individuals experienced when warning top DC officials about 9/11. This is why I and others are so reluctant to contact authorities concerning the issue, and specifically why I hesitated to contact the Las Vegas commander with my original warning (due to what I witnessed in Las Vegas). If it were not for the fact so many EU, Australian, Chinese, and Indian friends/kids that I know visit Las Vegas I would just ignore the situation and let it happen and then say I told you so to the media. (I am also covering myself by having proof that I did warn every authority responsible for public safety in Las Vegas, the US, and abroad.) I assure the situation is far worse than you know, and I would not underestimate it or the ruthlessness of the enemy. They have already picked out their targets and made their decision to carry out their missions no matter what. They will have to be physically stopped by and aggressive and competent campaign led by competent and aggressive law enforcement/intelligence officers.

Due to the seriousness of the situation, my ties to the EU, Australia, and other countries, I have warned Ministers that I have had previous contact with and others this week concerning issuing a travel warning to their citizens. I have not mentioned the city of concern, however as of next week I may have to. I do not want to get involved in the situation at all, I like 3 other top terrorist experts are fed up with the incompetence and politicizing of terrorism that has led to the disastrous attacks from 9/11, Paris, San Bernardino, and now Brussels. (The experts are former Clinton & Bush terrorism expert Richard Clark, former CIA agent/CNN consultant Bob Baer, and former Bin Laden desk Chief Michael Scheuer.) We have all reached this point due our being completely correct in our forecasts and strategies for addressing terrorist threats, and the individuals and entities that were listened to being dead wrong each and every time. An audit of my record on forecasting terrorist trends and events to be irrefutably accurate, and an audit of the "experts" to be irrefutably inaccurate.

The individuals that are sought after to address terrorism in the US by the government and media are not actually experts-are you aware of that? If you are counting on US or local counter terrorism officials to save Las Vegas-I would stock up on body bags, you're going to need them.

Those responsible for anti-terrorism measures in Las Vegas and the US as a whole have no idea what they are up against, nor do they have a clue as to how to negate the threat-hence why ISIS/Al Qaeda continue to beat them to the punch.

EXAMPLES:
-The only people that did not know that Ms. Prouty a terrorist mole were the Directors of the FBI and CIA (literally) that fought over her and gave her the highest awards the agencies has https://www.justice.gov/archive/opa/pr/2007/November/07_nsd_910.html http://www.cbsnews.com/news/the-case-against-nada-prouty-26-03-2010/. There are a lot more Nada Prouty's in the US committing the same act. Ms. Prouty proves a Middle Easterner cannot be vetted, there are many just like her in the US that have US passports, driver's licenses, and they are in no way who the government thinks they are right down to the names on those documents.

-This terrorist pioneer lived 2 miles down the road from me http://articles.chicagotribune.com/1985-06-19/news/8502090070_1_lebanon-david-berry-nabih-berri

I grew up here and know or have met all of the people connected to this issue and I assure you the situation is far worse than is suspected by authorities. I have met and talked to many of the individuals responsible for stopping these terrorists, and trust me-the terrorists are far ahead of the opposition.

LAS VEGAS CONNECTION

http://www.wxyz.com/news/local-news/investigations/happys-pizza-headquarters-raided-by-irs-criminal-division-dea (Las Vegas has a franchise and a lot more connections to Detroit/Dearborn than you likely are aware of. It is a case of this https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=JcZHSGyos6g)

I have talked with the founders of this business several times and this case was strictly about terrorist funding as in this case http://www.mlive.com/lansing-news/index.ssf/2011/12/report_several_southeast_michi.html.

In closing, my original warning should have been ran to ground, the fact that it wasn't is proof of just how off and far behind Las Vegas is in addressing Paris and Brussels style attacks (this week every Minister from every foreign country I contacted responded with a phone call or/and email seeking further information because they now "get it".) To be direct, authorities in Las Vegas and the US have their heads in the sands regarding the issue of terrorism and must change their strategy and tactics while they still have a chance to do so. With Las Vegas having the worst inherent terrorist vulnerabilities of any major city, Las Vegas should be much more precise and aggressive in avoiding such an attack (which is possible). An attack in the manner that I have forecast would dwarf the Paris body count by a minimum of X5, however it will be worse. The intelligence, physical security, and counter measures of Las Vegas are an invitation for an attack, and the terrorist know all of the cities vulnerabilities as well as I do.

No casino pit boss, dealer, etc. could have the record of the anti-terrorism leadership and still be employed in Las Vegas, it is the equivalent to them "losing" track of a million dollars every day for a year and the casino owners and Gaming Control Board accepting any explanation he came up with as legitimate. This would never happen. The see something say something just does not work as Brussels, Paris, and San Bernardino prove with the number of people that knew and didn't talk for various reasons. The #1 reason is that people simply have no confidence in authorities taking proper action. Examine my experience with the issue, each time I am putting my life and business life in danger by even contacting authorities in Las Vegas, and not once has anyone so much as responded or asked me how and why I reached the conclusions I have reached. This is a mirror of the warning by James Woods cited below regarding 9/11-it all could have and should have been ended right then and there. The mindset of law enforcement/political leadership on the municipal level must change, at the end of the day the battle and ramifications are like all politics-local.

As you know the odds always catch up, and luck runs out. Vegas' luck is about to run out in the worst of ways. If you would like the scenario I war gamed, I will forward it upon your request.

Thank you and good luck-

Sincerely,
Jerome Almon

Subject: INFORMATION ON SAFETY ISSUES-LAS VEGAS

To: ted@tedmoody.com

Sheriff Moody:

Thank you for you response and time regarding the issues below:

1)THE TERRORISM ISSUE:

As you are certainly aware of, Al Qaeda has Las Vegas as one of its top 5 main targets, specifically the Strip. I am certain that the area has been scouted and targets selected based on my experience in the area and my observations of individuals and groups while in Las Vegas. They will hit what is most familiar with them, and Las Vegas is very familiar to them. (For example the mastermind behind 911 graduated from the University of North Carolina http://edition.cnn.com/2002/US/South/12/19/al.qaeda.aggie/ .

ACTIONS THAT WILL BE TAKEN BY TERRORIST:

A) http://newyork.cbslocal.com/2014/03/19/al-qaeda-magazine-calls-for-car-bombings-in-u-s-new-york

B) http://www.cnn.com/2013/09/18/world/asia/mumbai-terror-attacks/

RECOMMENDED COUNTER MEASURES:

A) Special response teams will not get to the site in time, and must be in place PRIOR to any incident in the immediate area.
B) CONTAIN AND KILL-officers must be prepared to neutralize the terrorist at the point of attack, i.e. the attacker cannot be allowed out of the building, off the block, or off the side of the street where they attacked (Las Vegas Blvd is a perfect kill zone for a terrorist due to its geography, such as the inability to cross the Strip in certain areas combined with the natural traffic volume.) Point blank, these are the same individuals and groups that Delta Force, Navy SEALS, Army Rangers, Airforce Commandos, and Marine RECON/special forces faced on the battlefields of Iraq and Afghanistan-they are not to be under estimated. (Essentially they are Islamic special forces.) They are going to attack sooner than later.
C) Las Vegas should have its own anti-terrorism unit on the level of the NYPD's anti-terrorism unit, NYC learned its lesson the hard way 911-YOU CANNOT DEPEND ON THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT TO PROTECT YOUR CITY. As you will see in the information from the Canadian CIA (CSIS) and the response to that information from both that unit and myself, the federal authorities are grossly out of touch with reality regarding terrorism.

I assure you this is not close to the worst.
I am well versed in this area as you will see due to my studies/duties as a university guest lecturer, and personal experiences however most of my experience is first hand. I left college and joined the US Army, several individuals that I attended college with left college and joined our enemy and did fight against the US in numerous war zones around the world. These individuals are supported by groups in America, and know the country as well as you and I do.

Secretary Napolitano-

I am writing you concerning a pervasive and unacceptable sanctioned policy within the Department of Homeland Security of the sexual harassment of female traveler's entering the United States. I have been informed by numerous female travelers coming to visite me in the United States from Norway, Germany, and especially Canada that they are routinely harassed by male DHS inspectors. I find the allegations completely credible due to the carbon copy stories from the females, and the profile of the females- all attractive teen or near teen girls traveling alone. The harassment is so overt that it is impossible that supervisors are not aware of it, do not witness it, and in fact sanction it.

I have a substantial amount of both academic and field study experience in this area, and have personally witnessed the practice by DHSemployees myself. This is should be addressed in the open without hesitation. It is insulting to the female travelers, and also opens up US females to the retaliatory actions by the security personnel of other countries-which I assure has happened. Certainly with all the alleged dangers facing Americans and the gaping holes in border security at the various ports of entry, DHS does not have the luxury expending valuable energy and tax payers money on sexually harassing female travelers.

I thank you for your time and consideration and will await your reply.

Sincerely,

Jerome Almon

Dear Jerome,
Thank you for contacting me about the reports of sexual misconduct and abuse by U.S. Customs and Border Protection agents. I appreciate that you have taken the time to communicate your views and concerns with me.

I share your concern about this issue. Should related legislation come before the U.S. Senate for a vote, I will keep your views in mind, and share your thoughts on this issue with my colleagues who serve on the Senate Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee.

Thank you again for contacting me. Please continue to keep me informed about issues of concern to you and your family.

website_comments: I have had previous contacts with your office issues (specifically Bonnie Tischler). I feel it is necessary to reintroduce this information (I will send a copy of thisinformation to US Senator Carl Levin.) I have made compliants against certain procedures and individuals at the Detroit/Windsor border crossing. I also corresponded with the Canadian Minister for Immigration (Elinor Caplan) concerning the fact that even the supervisors at the Canadian border do not understand much of the information they need to concerning legitimate vs. false documentation. (I unfortunately am able to prove this point.) Meaning if say a person was on a wanted list -the Canadians often ask the person to interpret the information.
Finally the Detroit/Windsor tunnel. It is a disaster waiting to happen. Since the US checks cars AFTER they have entered the tunnel (as does Canada) -doesn't that defeat the objective of stopping a terrorist act in the tunnel? The check should happen before the tunnel is entered, and after-or the tunnel should be closed.

I originally warned a agent at a federal law enforcement entity of the threat on 9/11 and although he agreed I was correct, he took no action, stating he didn't exactly know what to do regarding the information, and that he was quite frankly stunned at the danger. Only when an individual drove through the tunnel with what appeared to be a bomb on his front seat did the politicians take the matter up, as you will see with NYC. The tunnel is in a far worse position than it was on 9/11 due to Detroit's economic collapse, the influx of more Middle Easterners into Canada, and this http://www.reuters.com/article/us-detroit-tunnel-bankruptcy-idUSBRE96O0RT20130725.

Tighter security at border hits snag

Legal issues may block U.S., Canada checks before crossing

WASHINGTON -- Checking travelers between the United States and Canada after they've crossed the border -- which some liken to checking airline passengers after they land -- is being scrutinized by officials concerned that bridges and tunnels could be vulnerable to attack.

Lawmakers are pressuring the U.S. Customs Service and Canadian officials to come up with a decision this week on whether the countries can swap inspection locations.

An alternative to paying a toll, crossing the bridge or tunnel, and then being scrutinized by Customs officials once inside the other country's territory is to do inspections before crossing.

Although the reverse inspection system is the only solution being lobbied to enhance infrastructure safety, the two nations haven't agreed on how to settle legal obstacles. An old idea revived by the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, a revised system would involve numerous agencies in both countries in the decision.

"This reverse clearance proposal has a number of sovereignty and structure issues attached to it," said Michel Proulx, spokesman for the Canada Customs and Revenue Agency in Ottawa.

"There are a lot of players involved in all of this. It's difficult to get a sound, concrete answer. No one department or agency would be able to say yes or no."

There's little to stop someone who wanted to damage the Ambassador Bridge, Detroit-Windsor Tunnel, or even Detroit Metropolitan Airport, if the crime is done before the perpetrator even gets to an inspection point, critics say.

Besides the human safety concern, destroying any one of the border-crossing points would do serious harm to the auto industry, one of the United States' economic engines, and many other businesses that rely on just-in-time delivery of material. Michigan had $70 billion in trade with Canada in 2000.

"Every time I drive through that tunnel, I expect something to happen," said Jerome Almon, a Detroiter who drives to and from Toronto at least twice a month.

"Osama bin Laden says the economy is what they want to attack, and you cannot find a more decimating effect than that bridge or tunnel on our economy. You will kill Detroit, it's over, goodbye. But think of the effect on the rest of America."

Firearms an issue

Aside from jurisdiction, the question of whether U.S. Customs agents should carry firearms in Canada is of particular concern to Canadians. Canada is known for being much less tolerant of guns than the United States.

"Our Customs officers are not armed and at this point in time we still feel there is no reason for them to be," Proulx said.

"We have a study going on right now to determine whether the tools they have are adequate to do their jobs safely and with full security.

The U.S. (agents) are (armed) and definitely that would be one of the snags in the issue."

The preclearance concept does have precedent. U.S. Customs agents inspect U.S.-bound passengers at six Canadian airports so they don't have to be routed through Customs once they arrive like travelers on flights from every other country, said former Michigan Gov. James Blanchard.

He spearheaded the "open skies" agreement when he was U.S. ambassador to Canada.

The real stumbling block to doing this at bridges and tunnels will be working out how much authority each side is given to enforce the other country's laws, he said.

"You could always prevent (a suspicious passenger) from getting on the plane," Blanchard said. "The question is who arrests them, can they say 'I choose not to fly' then go home, or do we hold them?"

Sen. Carl Levin, D-Detroit, said he thinks all of the issues can be worked out.

"The only impediment here is bureaucratic impediment," he said. "Even though there's supposed to be an urgency after Sept. 11, there seems to be some unnecessary foot-dragging."

Levin and Sen. Debbie Stabenow, D-Lansing, sent a letter to Customs Commissioner Robert Bonner on Jan. 4, insisting on a progress report by Friday.

"It is obvious that inspecting vehicles for dangerous contents such as bombs or explosives after they enter our tunnels or cross our bridges is inadequate," they wrote.

Customs spokesman Jim Michie said he wasn't sure when a decision would be made on reverse inspections, but that it was being closely studied.

Tighter local security

Local authorities say they've taken the steps they can to bolster security.

Travelers who use the Detroit-Windsor Tunnel are no longer allowed through unless operators are certain they can make to the other side without backups, said Gordon Jarvis, president of the Detroit & Canada Tunnel Corp.

"If there is an incident and you need to get out, there is space for you to do so, and there are fewer cars in the tunnel at any one time," Jarvis said. "It also makes it much easier for us to identify when there are incidents in the tunnel."

Jarvis said reverse inspections are a viable option at the tunnel, despite the smaller queue area, compared to other crossing points like the Ambassador Bridge.

The owners of the Ambassador Bridge have installed new lighting, fencing and surveillance cameras, as well as armed security 24 hours a day, said Dan Stamper, president of the Detroit International Bridge Co.

Stamper said the bridge company is paying for the extra security.

"We're not sure whose responsibility it is for the cost of security, but we are not in the position to say it's not going to be done," he said.

The bridge authority has completed plans showing that logistically, preclearance can be implemented on an interim basis within 90 days,

Stamper said. In doing so, there would be the added bonus of huge efficiencies in traffic flow.

"The current six lanes that cross the border, two at the tunnel and four at the bridge, become traffic lanes and not parking lots," Stamper said. "It increases the capacity of both the tunnel and the bridge, a lot more than anything else we can do today."

Blue Water Bridge study

Bruce Campbell, the engineer manager of the Blue Water Bridge, said the proposal is being examined as part of a long-term security review of the span connecting Port Huron with Sarnia, Ontario.

With the Ambassador Bridge being the busiest U.S.-Canada entry point, carrying 12 million vehicles a year, the economic implications for the region are enormous.

"One 18-wheeler goes across that bridge every eight seconds," said Carmine Palombo, director of transportation planning at the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments.

The implications for the bridge and tunnel operators are significant as well.

"They're all looking at an out-of-pocket expense they hadn't anticipated," said Neil Gray, director of government affairs at the International Bridge, Tunnel and Turnpike Association, which represents toll agencies.

"Nobody wants to do a toll increase to reflect this, in fact I'm not sure anyone has proposed one, but it's an issue we are all having to think about."

Protecting airports is a concern as well, though most of the attention has been on protecting aircraft against air piracy, Capt. Duane E. Woerth, president of the Air Line Pilots Association, told senators late last year.

Noting that airports in Rome and Vienna have been hit, Woerth said he's worried terrorists could attack ticket counters, check-in facilities and lines of passengers waiting outside.

Airlines, bridges and tunnels are experiencing lower traffic flow because of leisure travelers concerned about terrorist risks.

Almon, the Detroiter who travels to Toronto on business, said he's a former combat engineer with the Army and he's concerned about how easily a carload of explosives put together with store-bought material could take out the bridge or tunnel.

"At the mouth of the Detroit tunnel sits General Motors headquarters, a terrorist would get two for one with that," Almon said.

Dear Mr. Almon:

Thank you for your correspondence of July 18, 2011, regarding the proposed construction of a new bridge between Detroit and Windsor. Please accept my apologies for the delay in replying.

The issue with the Ambassador Bridge is equally troubled, the owner has successfully blocked a new bridge being built. The issue too closely resembles the Dubai Ports issue https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Manuel_Moroun. Ottawa wrote me 90 days after my warning to CYA and because again what I warned them about occurred.

Dr. Zagar-

Good to hear from you. I am sorry I just got to my email messages, I am working on several other huge projects that all come back to the migrant issue. I will have to hook up Skype, I don't know how it works to be honest.

The situation in the States is pretty dire. We are essentially at civil war with the country collapsing socially. All of the work that you and Dr. Feinstein did and your forecasts turned out to be 100% accurate. Simply put, America bet on the wrong people with the wrong plans and now we are getting our comeuppance.

I am against the re-settling of immigrants in the US or Europe, it will most certainly lead to more conflict in both areas and the Middle East. The only hope is establishing a safe zone in Syria and Iraq, which is as close to impossible as it gets considering the collapse of the basic structures and the radicalization of the factions. Electing George Bush was the worse event that has happened to the world since WWII. I will get on Skype and send you another email asap. I am moving to Berlin to work on a large social media project in the next 30-60 days. In the meantime I am sending these articles for your review concern my thoughts on the migrant issue. Would you be able to attend a conference on the issue of the migrants and school shooter issues in Europe or the US with all expenses and a fee paid to you?

The other issue I am extremely concerned about is a threat that would end Detroit, cost America 2 million jobs in a week, and plunge the stock market to below 2008 and 911 levels. The Iran deal was done in part due to Iran has 40,000 agents in or at America's borders prepared to attack if Iran's nuclear facilities were attacked. That is the good news, the bad news is the Sunnis have 3X that many agents in the US and are preparing for their "Islamic Tet offensive." With Russia, out of necessity intervening in the Syrian/Iraq war and the US govt. giving behind the scenes approval for the Russian-Iranian-Alawite axis which will inevitably bring in Israel and the US the Sunnis will go after the US and Canadians on their own soil in a much more aggressive and massive way. My assessment is that the Chinese will be drawn into the war due the unrest with the Xinjiang Province and the Uighars. The Islamic State (IS) has spread throughout Central Asia and will take Afghanistan and defeat the Taliban in the end unless there is a "mass war event." It is my contention that Putin has decided to that. He cannot lose the Syrian-Iraq War, he cannot allow the IS to continue to grow in the Central Asian Republics, and Afghanistan, and he is not giving up Crimea, and does not have the military resources nor money to fight a prolonged war. I believe Putin is planning to use a tactical/battle field nuclear weapon (NATO appears to be thinking that way on the Ukraine which is insane). Most of the intelligence guys that I respect believe that is the only way to stop the IS/Sunnis or to completely withdraw from the Middle East. What is your opinion?

Thanks-

Jerome

(My numbers on the size of the networks mentioned are accurate I assure you. 2 other respected security/intelligence officers that have a proven track record of accuracy, agree with me. The messages I sent to US authorities were more detailed and were sent in the Spring of 2014, and the Spring and Summer of 2015.)

Sir or Madam: I am forwarding the following information sent to first responders, due to its application to your industry. To be direct, I have warned your union several times since 9/11 of these very threats, and the actions of the leadership has not matched the threat. Unfortunately, this is the same conduct of law enforcement and political leadership regarding what is now a catastrophic situation. That is, the industry will suffer huge losses in both personnel and revenue due to the lack of taking prudent steps to pre-act rather than react to obvious threats. The only hope in negating or minimizing the threat is for the travel, hotel, and tourism industries along with the pilot and flight attendant unions (and their allies) to join forces and seek to have necessary security and industry support measures put in place without political consideration. The needed measures must be completely based on the real world security and economic threat that exists, and is getting worse by the minute. The losses France and Belgium are suffering are just the beginning, and minor in compared to an Egypt Air or Russian Sharm El Sheikh incident in North America or Europe. I assure you, the threat is far worse than is known even to most of the law enforcement community.

Sincerely,

Jerome Almon

TRUE STATE OF THE TERRORIST THREAT IN AMERICA

From Canada's CIA (CSIS):

"Many Canadians may be surprised to learn that, with the exception of the United States, there are more terrorist groups active in Canada today than in any other country in the world."

VERIFICATION

http://www.torontosun.com/2013/01/23/algerian-terrorists-had-canadian-ties-eh

The information was removed from the website in late 2013 due to White House protests, the largest number of these terrorist are at the South end and North end of the tunnel and bridge cited below.

There are more than 400 ISIS operatives and 300 recruiters in my neighborhood. As with the deliberate ignoring of the 9/11 warnings, these non-scientific reports will result in the deaths of untold numbers of civilians.

Hi Katja,

I got your contact details from Marie at Freemuse in Denmark. My name is Scott Corben and I am a producer with Al Jazeera Television in London.

I am researching a piece on soldier in the United States and I am really keen to speak to a guy called Jerome Almon. I believe he is based in Detroit. Maries tells me that you may have some way of contacting him. If you have an up to date email or phone number I'd really appreciate it.

Look forward to hearing from you

best regards,

DAYS UNTIL THE STATE GOVERNMENT SHUTDOWN: 106

DAYS UNTIL THE NEVADA PRESIDENTIAL CAUCUS (FOR NOW): 327

DAYS UNTIL THE 2016 ELECTION: 604

Good morning, everyone. Just when you thought the GOP Ass. Caucus had settled down a bit, trading in its incendiary, mindless rhetoric for incendiary, mindless bills (no more professional licenses!), Michele Fiore participated in a voter ID hearing. Chaired by Shelly "Hammurabi's Code Makes Sense Today" Shelton, the colorful event was marred only by Fiore's use of the word "colored" to talk about Harvey Munford. I'm sure the Gentle Giant thought it was OK because he's, well, Harvey. But, as an offended Tyrone Thompson pointed out later, she was, as Robert Kardashian once famously put it in another context, playing the race card from the bottom of the deck.

There was more, and Steve Sebelius was there and captured the insanity all too well. Whatever the merits of voter ID – and it clearly is a solution in search of a problem – the utter ignorance of this country's history was both astounding and, alas, not surprising. I wonder if Fiore, Shelton & Co., the core of the GOP Ass. Caucus, would be able to explain what the poll tax was. (Maybe we shouldn't give them ideas.) My favorite part of those arguing for voter ID, including our secretary of state, is how they always say they don't want to suppress anyone's vote. But if there is no evidence of voter fraud, then what could possibly be the motivation? Nice to see that Sharron Angle, who had the 2010 U.S. Senate election stolen by voter fraud (missed it by that (6 percent) much), was there to tamp down the racial tensions. You know what, dear Flashees? Some of the proponents looked a little crazy to me.

What's below: Carson nuggets, Morning Flash nuggets and a trivia question about a governor.

COMING UP

It's BLF Day! Take the day off work, pull the kids out of school, come to the theater! It will be an Opening Day for the ages.

Tonight's "Ralston Live" features state Superintendent Dale Erquiaga. May try to get one of those governors testifying today, too…..

Last night's program featured two of the governor's men and a progressive on voter ID.

A COUPLE OF CARSON CITY NUGGETS

Nugget No. 1 – It will begin about 1 PM with one governor, then go to three of his predecessors and then on to a technical presentation with the ubiquitous Jeremy Aguero and two key administration staffers. Then the parade begins, including a bunch of folks scheduled at a presser this morning at 10 AM. (I hope nobody asks these gubernatorial stand-up folks any details about the BLF to see why they support the plan. That might be fun/sadistic.) The hearing will go on for hours judging by the list of supporters I have seen. Trust me: Nearly every industry will praise the governor and his plan (Don't ask for details!), with some major lobbyists, business leaders and others slated to testify. Then watch the foes – truckers, retailers, auto dealers, manufacturers – to praise the man but criticize his method. Then what? Committee of the Whole for members to ask questions on Thursday, then some cooling time and a vote before April Fools Day? We shall see.

Nugget No. 2 – Jason Frierson, who lost to John Moore in perhaps the election's most stunning and significant result for the Legislature, already has had more impact this session than Moore ever will. Sources confirm that Frierson talked to state Senate Majority Leader Michael Roberson about amendments to make his domestic violence/guns bill palatable to Democrats. Without Frierson's intervention and Roberson's willingness to give on language, that 6-0 vote in committee would not have happened.

A TRIO OF MORNING FLASH NUGGETS

Nugget No. 1 -- A mailer arrived in city mailboxes this week from Stavros Anthony. I'll give you one guess what the subject matter was. Also: Lipstick on a pig metaphor. Now when is he going on TV with that Goodman town hall performance? That's his only shot, right?

Nugget No. 2 – Speaking of the city stadium stuff, I hear there is going to be some weird action today on Item 60 on the council agenda. That's the one that should be moot about a charter amendment prohibiting public money for the soccer stadium. Can't wait to see the speechifying and the vote.

Nugget No. 3 – Lots of interesting stuff in the latest Stat Pack, including stuff on the LVCVA, public employee salaries and the reality beyond the jobs numbers. Lots of fodder here for journos.

FLASH FACTS OF THE DAY

At age 19, Alfred Doten embarked on a journey around the continent by sea from the east coast of the United States to the share in the glorious potential of California. Doten was born on July 21, 1829 in Plymouth, MA. On his first day at sea, on March 18, 1849, Doten began writing in a journal. He arrived in California to pursue mining, but began working a variety of jobs before he headed to Nevada Territory in 1863. Doten continued updating his journal almost daily, as he began working as a correspondent for newspapers in California and Nevada. In 1872, Doten acquired the Gold Hill News. He would hire Wells Drury as a reporter for the paper. The first entry in his journal that mentions his future wife, Gold Hill teacher and widow Mary E C Stoddard, can be found on August 4, 1872. They were wed on a steamer on Lake Tahoe on July 24, 1873. Doten's journal documents the birth of his four children, and his move from Virginia City to Gold Hill to Austin to Carson City back to Virginia City, then finally to Carson City again. Doten maintained his journal until his death in Carson City, NV on November 12, 1903. Doten was inducted into the Nevada Writer's Hall of Fame in 1995. His journal contains a lot of mundane entries of life in the west, but it also presents a fairly comprehensive life and times of a journalist on the Comstock. The University of Nevada acquired the 79 leather bound volumes that made up Doten's Journal in 1961. Walter Van Tilburg Clark edited the works down to a three volume set, published in 1973 by the University of Nevada Press. I found a 3 volume set of Alfred Doten's Journals covering his life since his departure from the east coast of the US in 1849 until his death in 1903 on Amazon.com for $250.00.

(Hat tip to William Lefkovics at @HistoryNevada. Follow him for great stuff every day.)

TRIVIA QUESTION OF THE DAY

Three former governors will testify today in favor of Bran Sandoval's tax proposal. But one who will not be there will have a much larger influence on the outcome. Who, why and what was the actual name of his signature initiative?

Tuesday's winner: Henderson's David Cherry

The question: This is the anniversary of the opening 27 years ago of the reincarnation of a mob-tied casino as a new resort. It changed hands again and is now named after a man or a city – hard to tell which. What was its first, second and third names?

The answer: Sundance, Fitzgerald's, The D

Subject: child support order recieved in mail and your office protecting a criminal using the family system to commit fraud and criminal offenses

Dear Mr. Steve Wolfson< District Attorney;

I Peter Deiana in proper person, refuse from this day forward to be bullied, threatened and treated with such a disgusting disregard to my civil and constitutional rights by your office, the family court system as a whole and the attorneys that continuously get well compensated for openly helping their clients that have the financial means to hire these dirtbags commit serious offenses; criminal offenses and hide them from prosecution under the cover of the family courts. Now this isn't true for all litigants; It stands true if you are of the female sex you very easily can get away with serious serious criminal offenses, offenses that carry felony d and worse charges! In my particular cases (plural) the justice system we know as family courts has failed me twice. completely ruined my life to where i've contemplated taking my own life. both these women have committed serious criminal offenses against myself your office and the courts. I have more than enough proof; I have presented my obligation of proof in the first case with Rebecca Deiana, Stiltz, and whatever she has changed her name to now, Hinkle I believe. Multiple jurisdictions multiple courts multiple child support offices multiple counties and states and always the legal system fails to take responsibility and do what they are obligated to do.... RIGHT THE WRONGS AND PUNISH THE CRIMINALS> It has been shown to me over and over again that the judges that have been elected to their benches fail us as men over and over and over again because it is much easier for them to continue their careers under the cover of "the norm and acceptable" then to take a stand and risk the persecution by their piers then to believe that the things that I and i'm sure 1000's o other men have accused these women of doing; THAT IN FACT THESE WOMEN ARE VERY CAPABLE OF COMMITTING THESE GROSS AND COMPLETE LACKING OF REMORSE AND MORAL STANDARDS IF ANY STANDARDS AT ALL!!! Somebody needs to take a stand and change your spineless practices and start prosecuting these women and judges and attorneys that are ruining; completely ruining countless lives day in and day out and at day end never giving them another thought as the add to our homeless, add to our drug addiction epidemic, add to the horrible rise in suicides and worse of all add the number of children that grow up without a father, when the father wanted nothing more than to be a father to that child and the growing number of our youth that are suffering from mental instability issues handed down from you officials showing total disregard to the long term consequences of your actions. When did we stop caring about what was right and wrong and right in front of our faces and start ruining lives because this book says here says such and such is the only scenario possible and this party should always be given no doubt to the statements being true. Over the last six to seven months I have studied so much on family law and scenarios that are documented as case study and opinions and turned into the bible on how to deal with certain offenses, to the point that nobody has to think nobody has to use common sense just open the book and the book will cast a shadow on the offending party and on with the ruining of lives we go. so much studying it literally made me sick to see how many regulations and statues as case studies and laws where written and published being completely sexiest and against the man from beginning to end. That is what got us here today, it started a movement by these women that should be stripped of their parental rights for doing these acts toward and directly affecting the innocent children the family courts says they act in the best interest of. Completely not A TRUE STATEMENT ON THE COURTS PART. iF i CAN TAKE THE N.R.S THAT EXPRESSES HOW THE SYSTEM SHOULD COME TO THEIR CONCLUSION ON THE BEST INTEREST OF CHILD, AND I can with out a doubt that these women especially Ashley have violated ever one of the regulating factors of these guidelines and ultimately gets ignored and swept aside by rebuttals of complete lies false allegations and perjury and all out fraud. Well I am going to be making that stand myself!!! I WILL NOT GO ALONG WITH EITHER COURT ORDER OF SUPPORT FROM THIS DAY FORWARD. Instead I will be continuing this front against both parties, the courts and the lawyers at fault for letting these behaviors and actions continue on without consequence but with out a doubt is ruining countless amounts of lives day in and day out. This needs to change. I have written a great number of emails to a great number of agencies and offices about the specifics of my current case or onset of false allegations, false police reports, crimes against my person and crimes against public, perjury, fraud upon the courts, fraudulently presenting herself as a victim of specific domestic violence acts that she Ashley, actually committed against myself in the direct presence of my children, child abduction and serious onset of alienation.Alienation of affection; a multiple year onslot of alienation delivered by my wifes mother directly and personally. And more, all provable, most are very obvious. obvious and very provable case of multi state criminal conspiracy involving a minimum of 5 individuals which includes but not limited to false testimonies/willingness to provide false testimonies, to do with false criminal allegations to gain imprisonment of myself and judgements in my wife's favor. including my wife's attorney, her brother her mother her father her friend and our babysitter Jamie Houston resident of enterprise, southern highlands in southern las vegas and runs a day care that is past legal capacity on most days in reference to license, employees, space and number of children. Her brother Rob Mcclelland resides in albuquerque new mexico, Mother and father Kathi and Bob McClelland from Tucumcari, new mexico and own 2 pharmacys and is currently under their second serious investigation by the pharmacy board for illegal practices and distributions of controlled and dangerous drugs. It should be known I am a main witness and have provided a great deal of evidence in this case with the pharmacy board of new mexico and these people know this to be true and I propose a threat to their fraudulent and illegal lifestyle. Attorney is Gary Zernich and is very privy to all this information and knows it to be true and has taken a personal interest toward destroying my character and continues to help his client in her hidden and illegal agendas. Now know all these statements to be very true and that I do hold evidence and proof to all accusations i have made in this statement and all others I have written and will continuously write and distribute thru out until Justice; true justice prevails. And I will take this to the upper courts and will continue to insist somebody of authority stands up and takes charge and these individuals are rightfully charged and prosecuted with the criminal charges they deserve and my children are reunited with me and my civil, personal and constitutional rights are no longer being violated. I will not tolerate being illegally and fraudulently being stripped of my rights to a father/child relationship for 6-7 months now; completely denied over 600 attempts at visitation will also being abused under the cover of the family courts. And I definitely will not fund these women's fraudulent and illegal activities with $1600.00 a month in judgements against me. I havent made $1600.00 a month in at least the last 3 months!!!! and recently find myself unemployed. Even though my wifes reward from success in her agendas against me is becoming a million aire (no longer cut off from family money and inheratances by her mother) I will have no argument to taking care of my responsibilities but not under these circumstances. I will prevail in complete reversals in both cases. If you feel that it proves a point or somehow helps or fixes anything by putting me in jail, then so be it. I will add wrongful imprisonment to the fight and will immediately continue my fights for justice against the unbelievable actions of these women the second and every time I am released.

Thank you in advance,
Pete Deiana

Rich,

Thanks for being patient with me .

Some background is included on the City of Las Vegas Audit Oversight Committee. See the noted link.

http://www.lasvegasnevada.gov/faces/home/city-clerk/city-of-las-vegas-audit-oversight-committee?_afrLoop=5253634391113537&_afrWindowMode=0&_adf.ctrl-state=r4eqvmqjx_1041

In times past we have utilized expertise of former law enforcement persons. (e.g. Joe Saitta US Secret Service and Jose Troncoso former US Marshal and former Police Chief of North Las Vegas)

Currently we have two members appointed from the City Council. Councilman Bob Coffin (served on Post Legislative Audit Committee in the Nevada Legislative) and Councilman Bob Beers (CPA and CFE)

Additionally, we have two members at large. Greg Headlee, Chief Internal Auditor for Southwest Gas and Annette Carro, Stewart, Archibald & Barney CPA firm.

As you can see we are well staffed with Auditing and Accounting Professionals, we would like to add some experience in the Law Enforcement area as part of what we might audit can have fraud implications.

We are looking for a person with Law Enforcement background to add to our Audit Oversight Committee, please advise if you have someone who might fit these qualifications.

Thank you in advance for your assistance. Should you have questions or comments please feel free to contact me.

Subject: Federal litigation impacting OON Providers - Understanding balance Billing, fee forgiveness, recoupment and fraud audits

Ted Burton

Dear colleague,

Out of Network (OON) providers have been facing a slew of lawsuits from ínsurance companies for failure to balance bill and for indiscriminate fee forgiveness.

Some Facts:

- HCA Health* v. Aetna, it was held that ínsurance companies must establish a procedure for requesting waiver of co-ínsurance or co-payments, without which they cannot hold a healthcare service provider liable for waiving co-payments.
- North Cypress* v. *Cigna, it was held that the ínsurance plans of the patients must be interpreted as they are likely to be understood by an average plan participant.

Fee Forgiveness has provided practitioners and providers in the healthcare system an ability to attract more patients to them; however, the same has brought legal challenges and other complications to the practice. The best way to understand the strategies of insurers is to carefully monitor federal litigation. The motions and memoranda within these cases outline the various positions of the health plans on risk areas such as balance billing, fee forgiveness, recoupment and fraud audits. As an OON provider, you can't possibly hope to obtain proper reimbursement and remain compliant in the current climate without understanding relevant federal laws and cases interpreting these laws.

Join us for this On Demand Webinar (available all day)—"Update on Federal Litigation Affecting out of Network Providers", on Tuesday, May 1, 2018, where expert speaker Thomas J. Force, Esq., reviews these recent set of lawsuits with in-depth case studies to unearth what will not. Out-of-network providers have been battling it out with well-known insurers like Cigna and Aetna – there's a lot you can learn from examining the decisions of these lawsuits. This session provides detailed case studies on these lawsuits and examines the decisions on balance billing, fee forgiveness and excessive fees – information that you need to ensure that your practice is compliant in balance billing, careful in fee-forgiveness, and prudent in documentation. You'll get all the guidance you need to avoid legal liabílity and improve profitability.

You'll get 1 AAPC CEU per registration.

Session Highlights:

- Type of disclosures that must be provided by the OON provider to their patients prior to rendering of services.
- Written policies that must be in effect so as to assist the practice succeed against healthcare audits.
- The purpose of patient assignment and benefit forms.
- The impact of anti-assignment provisions in healthcare plan documents.
- The danger of not collecting call ínsurance, deductibles or otherwise balance billing out of network patients.

Session Agenda:

- Network Participation
  - In-network vs. Out-of-Network
  - Patient Cost Sharing
  - Balance Bill
- Best Practices
  - Transparency and Disclosure

    - Practice Management
- Case studies
    - Out-of-Network Reimbursement
    - Fee Forgiveness
    - Excessive Fees
    - Assignment on Benefit Cases

Why Attend?

This session will help you learn strategies to avoid health plan audits and litigation based upon fee forgiveness and failure to balance bill patients. You will be provided disclosure and other patient forms, and practice policies which will assist you (out of network provider) to remain in compliance with state federal laws. You'll also get best practices for compliance.

Your registration includes:

- 1 AAPC CEU
- Complímentary attendee package, including the speaker's complete presentation handouts.
- Additional handouts on cases studies. Keep this quick reference tool close by for future use!

Please apply "SAVE20" at check-out to get $20 off on registration.

Too small to hack? Think again, says Computerworld

Writes Matthew Prewitt, partner at law firm Schiff Hardin, and chair of the firm's Cybersecurity and Data Privacy Team:

"The notion that a business might be too small or too boring for a cyber breach is a comforting fiction. The reality is that most cyber breaches are not the work of international criminal gangs or foreign intelligence operatives; they are attributable to the company's own employees. Mere negligence by even a well-intentioned employee can trigger substantial investigation and response costs, and an employee who is leaving to join a competitor or who simply carries a grudge against her boss can cause substantial competitive or reputational injury." EXPERT ANALYSIS

How The Trump Administration Lost Its Sanctuary City Case

When a federal court recently blocked President Donald Trump's executive order that would deny federal funds to so-called "sanctuary cities," the White House responded with an angry statement and Attorney General Jeff Sessions said the government would continue to litigate the case "to vindicate the rule of law." But for all its bluster, the administration lost the case when it filed its brief, says Jeffrey Gorsky of Berry Appleman & Leiden LLP. Read more »

Free Speech At Private Universities: Protected Or Not?

Although the First Amendment prohibits the government from infringing on free speech rights, it does not prevent private persons or entities from doing so. Thus, students at private universities have fewer free speech protections than those at public universities. But state laws and university policies may still provide legal cover for students at private institutions, say attorneys from Haynes and Boone LLP. Read more »

New Divisions In Indian Country Over Energy Justice

If energy tribes become greater players in resource extraction, it will only be a matter of time before environmentally oriented tribes begin to challenge them in court and in politics. If so, we will see a terrible battle over competing claims to tribal sovereignty as congressional rhetoric turns more to action, and tribal communities line up against each other, says Matthew Fletcher of Michigan State University College of Law. Carolyn-

I wanted to bring this back to the top of your inbox — can I get you an agenda for our upcoming Government Fraud Analytics Summit? We only have a few seats left, and I wanted to make sure you had a chance to get in.

Please let me know-

Thanks,

–Matt Rhodes

From: Matt Rhodes
Subject: Latest from WH and Congress
Date: Monday, September 25, 2017

Carolyn —

Big news – the White House Budget Office and Congress have each launched anti-fraud initiatives that will have a big impact on all government programs.

OMB is requiring risk assessments and fraud detection/reduction targets from each agency, while Congress has created a Commission to deal with legislative changes to target specific programs. With billions in potential fraud happening across government, these initiatives will receive a ton of oversight.

On October 23, 2017, the Performance Institute is convening the Government Fraud Analytics Summit to cover the latest mandates and present the best practices in fraud assessment, detection, mitigation and reporting.

Would you like to see the agenda and consider attending? If not, who in your agency would be the best person to follow-up with?

Thanks,

Matt Rhodes

Justices Leery Of Broad Ruling In Retaliatory Arrest Case

The U.S. Supreme Court expressed outrage Tuesday over the case of a Florida man arrested at his city council meeting for speaking about government corruption, but worried that allowing his First Amendment claim would open the floodgates for frivolous lawsuits against the police. Read more »

Sessions Warns Recent Judicial Rulings Threaten Exec. Power

U.S. Attorney General Jeff Sessions took a shot Tuesday at "maddening" court rulings in a D.C. speech, particularly those against the administration's immigration moves, while also blasting nationwide injunctions as a "growing problem" and deriding the Second Circuit's ruling on anti-gay discrimination as perhaps inspired by The New York Times. Superfund Sites And EPA Budget Cuts: A Collision Course

President Donald Trump's proposal to slash the 2018 budget and workforce of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has generated commentary over its potential ramifications. Assuming that a budget along the lines of the president's proposal is eventually adopted, governmental actions to address and remediate hazardous waste sites will undoubtedly be delayed or scaled back, says Kevin O'Brien of Butler Rubin Saltarelli & Boyd LLP. FEATURED EVENT

Should We Give President Trump a Chance?

This was a deeply polarized election, where Donald Trump won the Electoral College but lost the popular vote by over 2.8 million. His opponents argue he gave voice and legitimacy to extremists, and that his unpredictable, autocratic style is a threat to both democratic ideals at home, and stability abroad. But others, including critics, argue Trump's election represents the will of the American people, who — hungry for change — repudiated the status quo. Should we give President Trump a chance? Watch Wednesday's debate from Intelligence Squared, featuring the Brennan Center's Michael Waldman and The Atlantic's David Frum, against Bloomberg View's Clive Crook and political analyst Gayle Trotter.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

Less FDA Review May Boost Medical Device Plaintiff Awards

Consumers harmed by medical devices often find themselves wronged but without relief, thanks to federal preemption. But President Donald Trump's regulatory rollback could backfire against device manufacturers — and confer an unexpected benefit on plaintiffs — by weakening the U.S. Food and Drug Administration's oversight process and thus fortifying plaintiffs' state claims against federal preemption, says Benjamin Lajoie of Bailey & Glasser LLP.

Alternative Visa Programs For Foreigners Traveling To US

As the U.S. federal courts review the legality and constitutionality of President Donald Trump's recent executive order banning travel from seven Muslim-majority countries, Maria Mejia-Opaciuch of Carlton Fields PA discusses visa programs that should be considered by foreign nationals that may alleviate the need to process a formal visa stamp at a U.S. Consulate overseas, where delays are expected and confusion may reign.

Why Abolishing Basic Would Backfire — Badly

In the current environment, the risk of attacks on the fraud-on-the-market doctrine — established by the U.S. Supreme Court in Basic v. Levinson — seems high, and a general class action reform bill has already been introduced in the House. But Basic ballasts the system of securities law enforcement by protecting investors while providing companies with predictable procedures and finality upon settlement, says Douglas Greene of Lane Powell PC.

Who Would Face Liability For Oroville Dam Management?

The Butte County, California, sheriff recently ordered the evacuation of more than 180,000 people in the communities surrounding the Oroville Dam after officials spotted severe erosion in its emergency spillway. Although other avenues may exist to pursue liability against the agencies involved in management of the facilities, those agencies might avoid state tort liability on preemption grounds, says Brett Moore of Haight Brown & Bonesteel LLP.

Opinion

Policymakers Should Restore IRS Enforcement Funding

Recent proposals from both the Trump administration and House Budget Committee Democrats recognize that deep cuts in IRS enforcement funding since 2010 have undermined the agency's ability to perform. A funding cap adjustment should be included in any budget agreement this year, say Chuck Marr and Roderick Taylor at the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities.

Fed announces new payments research

The Federal Reserve today announced plans to conduct its sixth triennial study to determine the current aggregate volume and composition of electronic and check payments in the U.S. The study builds upon research begun by the Fed in 2001 to provide the public and the payments industry with estimates and trend information about the evolving nature of the nation's payments system. A public report containing initial topline estimates is expected to be published in December 2016.

"Over the 15-year life of the study, the survey instruments have been adapted and updated to keep pace with the dynamic change in the U.S. payments system," said Mary Kepler, senior vice-president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta and the study's executive sponsor. "Not surprisingly, the 2016 study will incorporate a number of significant enhancements, including an expansion of fraud-related information and an increase in the number of depository and financial institutions sampled." Justices Seem Wary Of Strict Int'l Deference Standard

The U.S. Supreme Court heard oral arguments on Tuesday in a price-fixing case involving the degree of deference statements from foreign sovereigns should be given, and while the sides seemed to push for a strict standard, the justices appeared wary of applying too heavy a hand to an issue that could have far-reaching repercussions. CFPB to study financial well-being. Banks can comment on survey approach

As part of a Dodd-Frank Act mandate on financial literacy, the CFPB plans a special study on Americans' financial well-being. In its own words:

"The Bureau plans to conduct a nationally representative survey to measure adult financial well-being and related concepts, as well as an oversample of adults age 62 and older to gather additional data relevant to the needs and experiences of older consumers. The specific goals of the survey are to (1) measure the level of financial well-being of American adults and key sub-populations; (2) quantitatively test previously developed hypotheses about the specific types of knowledge, behavior, traits and skills that may support higher levels of financial well-being; and (3) produce fully de-identified public use data files that will allow external researchers to examine additional questions about financial well-being and its drivers."

Jan. 26, 2016, is the comment deadline. Read more

Hello Esther,

Brad mentioned to me that the Goodman's were scheduled to speak at 1:30pm. I know that they will not be eating lunch so do you still need them to arrive at 1:00pm? I usually have Oscar arrive 10 minutes prior to speaking engagements.

Good morning all,

I would like to finalize the schedule for the Key Note luncheon on Monday, October 5 at the RIO.

The luncheon begins at 1:10 p.m. – 2:30 p.m. at the Miranda Ballroom.

Oscar Goodman and Mayor Goodman (along with showgirls) will be introduced by Brad Jerbic. The Goodmans will take the stage and speak about their life together as Mayors, Oscars life before Mayor and how they have raised a family and lived in Las Vegas.

We would like them to speak for approximately 15-20 minutes.

Jack Eslinger and I will be in the RIO Registration area and will take you into the luncheon.

Please confirm.

THANKS EVERYONE!

Hello Cissy,

Oscar has this event on his calendar, but he said he is only welcoming group and not staying for lunch. He did not mention that he is a keynote speaker. It's 1 A.M. Are you sending a business email? Why?

"Your late-night emails are hurting your team," by productivity consultant Maura Thomas on the Harvard Business Review website covers the common risks and the rare rewards of emailing round the clock. Says Thomas:

"Think about the message you'd like to send. Do you intend for your staff to reply to you immediately? Or are you just sending the email because you're thinking about it at the moment, and want to get it done before you forget? If it's the former, you're intentionally chaining your employees to the office 24/7. If it's the latter, you're unintentionally chaining your employees to the office 24/7. ... Being connected in off-hours during busy times is the sign of a high-performer. Never disconnecting is a sign of a workaholic. And there is a difference."

Does branch-level advice still cut it?

Brett King, banking futurist and keynote speaker at Banking Exchange's InnoBank 2015 event (see "Blogs," above), says this about advice in his book Breaking Banks:

"Conventional wisdom dictates that one of the primary reasons for maintaining a network of branches to support the customer base is that at any time a customer can come into the branch and get advice on his finances or banking. While this is the mantra within retail, mass affluent, and even small business banking, the reality is somewhat different. Advice in these scenarios is often more about product positioning than it is pure, unbiased financial advice, which is why the independent financial advisory business is thriving today." DAYS UNTIL BILLS HAVE TO BE OUT OF HOUSE OF ORIGIN: 5

DAYS UNTIL BILLS HAVE TO BE OUT OF COMMITTEE IN SECOND HOUSE: 29

DAYS UNTIL BILLS HAVE TO BE OUT OF SECOND HOUSE: 36

DAYS UNTIL THE FIRST SPECIAL SESSION BEGINS: 47

Good morning, everyone. Two smart analysts, Geoff Skelley and Kyle Kondik, looked at the 2017/2018 gubernatorial landscape. Their take is a bit different than mine, which is Lean GOP:

Nevada: The Silver State governor's mansion will be open as Gov. Brian Sandoval (R) is term-limited. On the Republican side, state Attorney General Adam Laxalt (R) is expected to run — he had $1.5 million sitting in his campaign account at the end of 2016 — but state Treasurer Dan Schwartz (R) may also seek the post, possibly setting up a competitive GOP primary. Recent polling suggests that Laxalt isn't all that well-known after a little over two years in office, and Schwartz may see an opening to confound the seeming favorite. As for the Democrats, Clark County Commission Chair Steve Sisolak (D) may be the favorite, with a reported $3.8 million in his campaign war chest at the end of 2016. Silver State expert Jon Ralston half-jokingly tweeted in November 2016 that, with Sisolak's fundraising prowess, Nevada "might as well not hold the election in '18." But Sisolak might not be the only Democrat running in 2018 who has money to spend. Resort mogul Steve Cloobeck (D) is pondering a run of his own that would be seeded with millions from his own bank account. Given the state's baseline competitiveness and the many unknowns, Toss-up seems like the right place to start.

What's below: Sending out an SOS, Morning Flash nuggets and a trivia question about a ribbon-cutting.

COMING UP

The BERNIE SANDERS/tom perez tour comes to Vegas this weekend.

THREE NONCITIZENS AND YOU'RE OUT?

I was walking out of the Assembly leadership offices Tuesday when I ran into Secretary of State Barbara Cegavske, who had come to brief the speaker and the Senate majority leader on the voter fraud probe that had caused so much controversy. She wouldn't tell me much, except to say she was telling the truth when she said earlier this year that she had seen no evidence of voter fraud in 2016 but then the office "stumbled" onto the latest evidence.

No matter how serious this is, and no matter how partisan the responses may be so far, the SOS's office clearly botched the rollout by not informing key officials, including Gov. Brian Sandoval, who I guarantee was furious to hear about it elsewhere, and by allowing speculation about the breadth of the violations to run rampant for days. If there are real problems with vetting registrations – and I have no doubt noncitizens get registered in many states -- fix it. If there are problems with letting those folks then vote, that is even more serious, so fix that, too. If a legislative fix is needed, as Assembly Minority Leader Paul Anderson said, then pass it.

But if it turns out only three voters cast ballot who should not have, as opposed to this being the tip of the iceberg, that's a small story that should not have been rolled out the way it was. But if we have yet to see the full iceberg, that is a real problem, and fingers could get pointed right back at the SOS.

Here's TNI's coverage, ICYMI.

Nugget No. 2 – Guess who's helping raise money for Jon Ossoff in Georgia? Catherine Cortez Masto! The first Latina senator being harnessed as a fundraising machine? Somewhere, Prince Harry is smiling.

Healthcare's Pricing Cabal Dan Munro Forbes 2/11/13 outline/summary by Bill Cole
RUC (Relative Value Scale Update Committee).
Medical services valuations under CMS by the RUC. I think the RUC easily qualifies as a cabal:
1 The RUC is a private organization created (in 1991) by the AMA – itself a private organization.
2 Membership in the RUC is reserved for "Member" Societies – by "invitation only" under terms of a rigorous NDA.
3 The RUC meets 3 times a year – again, by "invitation only."
4 RUC meetings are not open to the public or media (but their schedule is published here).
5 The Medicare Physician Fee Schedule (PFS) is based on recommendations made by the RUC – including CPT codes.
7 Historically, "value" recommendations made by the RUC to CMS/Medicare have been accepted 87.4% of the time (study from 1994 – 2010 here).
8 Private insurance companies (Aetna, Cigna, UnitedHealth, Blue Cross etc…)

base much of their pricing on these same code sets (PFS & CPT) which effectively makes the RUC the de-facto standard of all U.S. Healthcare pricing.
9 As evidenced by a lawsuit filed in August 2011 (here) and dismissed last year, the RUC appears immune to any legal challenge.
The money quote in the dismissal was this one by District Judge William Nickerson:
"Congress has precluded courts from reviewing, not only the final relative values and RVU's, but also the method by which those values and units are generated."
Roy Poses MD recently summarized his view this way: – (Clinical Assoc Professor of Medicine at Brown U)
Economists have beaten us over the head with the idea that incentives matter.
The RUC seems to embody a corporatist approach to fixing prices for medical services to create perverse incentives for physicians •to do more procedures, and •to do less conversing with and examining patients, examining the best clinical research evidence about their problems, and rigorously thinking about how best to help them.
"If we do not figure out how to make incentives given to physicians more rational and fair, expect health care costs to continue to rise, while access and quality continue to suffer."
.. there is much work already underway to "realign" these incentives around "value" and "patient-centered outcomes," but if the underlying pricing mechanism is seriously flawed, how (and when) do we fix that and shouldn't it be the top priority?
All of which begs an entire litany of questions. • Do we really need more healthcare pricing transparency, or do we need to get the RUC out of the business of secretly fabricating healthcare prices for the whole system?

SEC's Big DC Circ. Win Won't End In-House Clash

The U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission may feel as though it can rest easy after the influential D.C. Circuit became the first appellate court to affirmatively rule its administrative law judges are constitutional, but experts say the decision won't resolve the ongoing debate over the agency's use of its in-house tribunal.

SEC Wins 1st Appellate Ruling On In-House Constitutionality

The D.C. Circuit on Tuesday became the first appellate court to find that the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission's administrative courts are constitutionally sound, rebuffing an appeal brought by an investment adviser who claimed the agency's in-house judges needed to be appointed by the president.

Former GOP EPA Leaders Endorse Clinton, Slam Trump

Two former Republican administrators of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency said Tuesday they're backing Hillary Clinton for president over Donald Trump, whom they faulted for denying climate change and not supporting strong environmental policies.

Flint Residents Say Mich., Gov. Can't Duck Water Crisis Suit

Residents of Flint, Michigan, told a federal judge Monday that the state and several officials, including Gov. Rick Snyder, can't shake a proposed class action over the city's water contamination crisis, alleging that they mischaracterize the suit's claims and attempt to distort the issues.

DOE Clarifies Reimbursement Rules For Whistleblower Cases

The U.S. Department of Energy issued guidance Monday clarifying when the agency will reimburse legal costs to contractors in whistleblower cases, as part of a broader response to a recent watchdog report criticizing the DOE's purported lack of whistleblower protections.

7th Circ. Greenlights Energy Regs For Commercial Fridges

The commercial refrigerator industry will soon have to comply with new standards regulating the energy efficiency of its products following a Monday decision from the Seventh Circuit that found the U.S. Department of Energy did not cross the line in laying down the standards.

EPA Incinerator Ruling Undercuts CPP, DC Circ. Told

Opponents of the Obama administration's plan to reduce carbon dioxide emissions from existing power plants told the D.C. Circuit on Monday that the program can't proceed in light of a recent ruling that the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency can't require sources to average their emissions.

IRS Is Asked For Info On Carbon Credits For Oil Extraction

A coalition of environmental and taxpayer groups on Tuesday announced it has asked the Internal Revenue Service for records on the 45Q tax credit for carbon capture and long-term storage, looking to see how many credits have been given out for oil extraction since the provision was enacted in 2008 in the wake of the financial crisis.

IRS Scales Back Tax Preparer Fee Amid Class Action

The IRS plans to issue a final rule Wednesday to reduce the fees paid by tax professionals, in the midst of a class action claiming the agency had set the fee too high.

IMMIGRATION

Gov't Argues It Did Not Mislead Court In Immigration Case

The U.S. Department of Justice did not intentionally mislead the Texas federal court overseeing the challenge to President Barack Obama's executive actions on immigration and does not deserve to be sanctioned, the federal government argued Monday.

CenturyLink Urges FCC To Adopt Changes In Lifeline Program

Telecommunications company CenturyLink Inc. on Monday urged the Federal Communications Commission to reconsider some of the heightened standards it has floated for the Lifeline program, which provides subsidies for low-income Americans' phone and internet services.

FCC, Station Ask To Stay Case Pending Spectrum Auction

The Federal Communications Commission and a Florida-based broadcaster asked the D.C. Circuit to set aside their dispute over spectrum auction eligibility Monday until after the end of the auction this year.

Irish Regulator Warns Of Location Data Privacy Risks

Companies that collect data that can pinpoint an individual's location should ensure that they have that person's informed consent and that they take steps to minimize the amount of information they scoop up in order to avoid running afoul of Europe's privacy laws, the Irish data protection regulator advised Tuesday.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

Spotlight On 'Shadow Banking'

A recent speech by Federal Reserve Gov. Daniel Tarullo indicates that the Fed — and Tarullo in particular — continues to believe that the post-financial crisis regulatory reform efforts must include “shadow banking” entities and runnable funding. Further, the Federal Reserve is considering wide-ranging, and perhaps unorthodox, approaches to the regulation of runnable funding, say attorneys with Sullivan & Cromwell LLP.

A Better Approach To Environmental Prosecution?

As a result of the Yates memo and the U.S. Department of Justice's subsequent environmental announcement, we may now see an increase in prosecutions against persons for environmental crimes, which often create dilemmas for corporate compliance officers, who may find themselves caught in the middle of higher-level management and the personnel directly involved in the violations, says David Edelstein at Vorys Sater Seymour and Pease LLP.

Time To Reform The Antitrust Sentencing Guidelines

The U.S. sentencing guidelines for bid-rigging, price-fixing or market-allocation agreements among competitors do a lousy job of formulating a recommendation based on the actual culpability of an individual defendant. My recommendation is that the American Bar Association Antitrust Section forms a task force to review the guidelines and recommend changes, says Robert Connolly, a partner at GeyerGorey LLP and former federal prosecutor.

FINRA Is Wrongfully Imposing Rule 2010 Sanctions

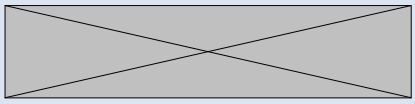
In nearly every letter of acceptance, waiver and consent involving a registered representative, the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority’s attorneys cite violations of FINRA Rule 2010. The rule has become a FINRA violation catchall and its inclusion in so many AWCs is questionable, says Max Schatzow of Stark & Stark.

FDA's Pursuit Of A National Medical Device Evaluation System

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration's recent draft guidance on evaluation of medical devices adds fuel to an ambitious initiative that could transform not only the FDA’s regulatory oversight of medical devices, but also how devices are developed by manufacturers and reimbursed by payors, say attorneys at Sidley Austin LLP.

NYC ‘Labor Peace’ Order May Clash With Federal Law

While the stated aim of New York Mayor Bill de Blasio's recent executive order is to ensure “labor peace” at development projects in which the city has a financial or propriety interest, the law undercuts the rights of covered employers and employees to make their own decisions regarding union representation, which may present conflicts with the National Labor Relations Act, says Robert Nagle at Fox Rothschild LLP.



BigLaw's Diversity Problem Puts It On Collision Course With Millennials

If law firms don’t make immediate strides toward becoming more inclusive, they risk alienating the next generation of lawyers, who are highly attuned to institutional bias and increasingly vocal about eradicating it.

Porn, Politics And The Undoing Of Kathleen Kane

Some say Pennsylvania Attorney General Kathleen Kane sought to shed light on a boys club culture when she released emails that sparked the “Porngate” scandal, and others say it was a distraction and retaliation ploy — two narratives that vie for legitimacy as she heads to trial on perjury charges.

Unbiased Jurors Will Be Tough To Find As Trump U. Cases Progress

The judge overseeing a pair of Trump University lawsuits faces the challenge of navigating competing goals: moving the cases along and finding juries that have not been tainted by the presidential election.

A year of squaring off against powerful adversaries such as the federal government, Apple and a potential class of 90 million members on behalf of major clients including Goldman Sachs, Comcast and Verizon Wireless has earned Winston & Strawn LLP a spot on Law360's Litigation Powerhouses list.

Contentious ABA Anti-Bias Rule Could Face Local Challenges

A flurry of late changes to a controversial American Bar Association anti-discrimination rule mollified most opponents and ultimately secured approval from a majority of delegates, but the policy may still face opposition as state judges and ethics committees ponder enactment and whether the rule undermines free speech and other rights.

Greenberg Traurig Exec Becomes ABA's President-Elect

Greenberg Traurig LLP's co-president Hilarie Bass took on another prestigious role Tuesday as the president-elect of the American Bar Association, which will lead directly to her assuming the role of association president next year.

DLA Piper Sees 4% Revenue Bump For International Ops

DLA Piper on Tuesday said that revenue for its operations outside the Americas over the last fiscal year grew by about 4 percent to £768.8 million ($999 million), marking another sign of growth after reporting a decent boost in global gross revenue.

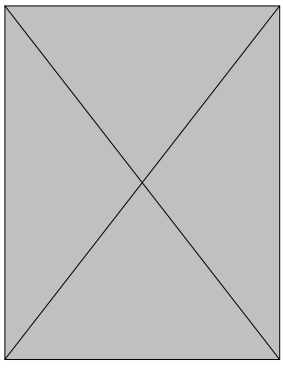
Changing Customer Experience Expectations

This IDC white paper assesses the impact Evergreen Storage has had on the enterprise storage industry and discusses the technical, financial, and business implications of the program from a customer point of view. Longer version - The upgrade cycle for traditional enterprise storage was not only expensive, but disruptive, risky, and time consuming. In 2015, Pure Storage challenged customer preconceptions about this upgrade cycle with Evergreen Storage, which allows storage to stay modern non-disruptively. This IDC white paper assesses the impact Evergreen Storage has had on the industry and discusses the technical, financial, and business implications from a customer point of view.



Citizen-Centered Service Delivery

This paper explores Citizen-Centred Service Delivery and concepts that provide government the opportunity to:

- Provide good service when it is needed;
- Lower cost of delivery than is incurred today;
- Achieve improved outcomes for individuals, their family and the country as a whole

'No Harm, No Foul,' DC Circ. Suggests In Uranium Mining Row

A D.C. Circuit panel was skeptical on Tuesday of forcing the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission to rethink a green light it gave a uranium mining project, with the judges pushing back on environmental advocates' concerns and wondering if there was "no harm, no foul" because the agency ultimately mulled, and rejected, groundwater contamination fears. What are the hidden costs and unseen losses in your fraud prevention process? How do your chargeback costs compare with other merchants? Are you turning down good orders that only look like fraud? Could you be paying too much for too many manual reviews?

Use our What's the "F" Word Costing You? Calculator and get hard numbers that answer these hard questions.

LexisNexis reports that on average, merchants experience fraud losses as a portion of revenue at 1.32%. With EMV regulation, data breaches and peak holiday sales upon us, it's no secret the cost of combating fraud can be discouraging. To understand exactly how fraud is affecting your business, try this 60-second, What's the "F" Word Costing You? Calculator, to get raw numbers unique to your organization, including:

- How to increase annual gross profit and revenue
- Total cost of fraud including expenses and losses
- What chargeback fees, manual review costs, and decline rates are costing you
- A detailed, 5-page report showing how to beat fraud and boost sales

INVESTMENT COMPANY EXECUTIVES INDICTED FOR $1.5 BILLION PONZI SCHEME

WASHINGTON – The president and chief executive officer and two former Asia-based executives of a Las Vegas investment company were indicted today for their roles in an alleged $1.5 billion Ponzi scheme.

Assistant Attorney General Leslie R. Caldwell of the Justice Department's Criminal Division, U.S. Attorney Daniel G. Bogden of the District of Nevada and Special Agent in Charge Laura A. Bucheit of the FBI's Las Vegas Division made the announcement.

"The defendants allegedly preyed on thousands of unsuspecting Japanese victims to enrich themselves by operating a billion-plus dollar Ponzi scheme," said Assistant Attorney General Caldwell. "This prosecution shows that the Criminal Division will pursue not only those who victimize American citizens, but also those who use the U.S. as a home base to defraud victims abroad."

"Investment fraud and other financial fraud cases are a high priority for the U.S. Attorney's Office in Nevada," said U.S. Attorney Bogden. "These defendants are accused of using a Nevada corporation to conduct their $1.5 billion fraud scheme and falsely telling thousands of overseas victims that their investments would be safely held and managed by an independent, third-party escrow agent in Nevada. Fraudulent ruses and schemes perpetrated by Nevadans using Nevada corporations and entities will continue to be addressed by this office."

"These indictments are a reminder of the FBI's determination to identify, investigate and bring to justice those who are committing financial crimes against innocent consumers," said Special Agent in Charge Bucheit. "We are appreciative of the continued support we receive from our international, federal, state and local law enforcement partners."

Edwin Fujinaga, 68, of Las Vegas; Junzo Suzuki, 66, of Tokyo; and Paul Suzuki, 36, of Tokyo, were charged in an indictment with eight counts of mail fraud and nine counts of wire fraud. Fujinaga also is charged with three counts of money laundering. The indictment seeks from all three defendants forfeiture of the proceeds from the alleged crimes.

Fujinaga was the president and CEO of Las Vegas-based MRI International Inc. (MRI). Junzo Suzuki previously was MRI's executive vice president for Asia Pacific, and Paul Suzuki previously was the company's general manager for Japan operations. MRI purportedly specialized in "factoring," whereby the company purchased accounts receivable from medical providers at a discount, and then attempted to recover the entire amount, or at least more than the discounted amount, from the debtor.

According to allegations in the indictment, from at least 2009 to 2013, Fujinaga and the Suzukis fraudulently solicited investments from thousands of Japanese residents, and MRI currently owes investors over $1.5 billion. Specifically, the indictment alleges that Fujinaga and the Suzukis promised investors a series of interest payments that would accrue over the life of the investment and that would be paid out along with the face value of the investment at the conclusion of the investments' duration. The defendants allegedly solicited investments by, among other things, promising investors that their investments would be used only for the purchase of medical accounts receivable (MARS) and by representing that investors funds would be managed and safeguarded by an independent third-party escrow company.

The indictment further alleges that MRI operated as a Ponzi scheme, wherein the defendants used new investors' money to pay prior investors' maturing investments. According to the indictment, the defendants also allegedly used investors' funds for purposes other than the purchase of MARS, including paying themselves sales commissions, subsidizing gambling habits, funding personal travel by private jet, and other personal expenses.

The charges contained in an indictment are merely accusations. A defendant is presumed innocent until and unless proven guilty.

This case is being investigated by the FBI's Las Vegas Division. Significant assistance was provided by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, the Criminal Division's Office of International Affairs and Japanese authorities. This case is being prosecuted by Assistant Chief Albert B. Stieglitz Jr. and Trial Attorney Melissa Aoyagi of the Criminal Division's Fraud Section and First Assistant U.S. Attorney Steven W. Myhre of the District of Nevada.

EEOC Ups Penalties For Title VII Notice Posting Violations

The U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission on Wednesday increased the maximum penalty for employers that violate notice posting provisions of Title VII and other statutes from $210 to $525 per violation.

Skadden Gets $660K Fees After Win In Calif. Judicial Pay Row

A California judge on Wednesday awarded Skadden Arps Slate Meagher & Flom LLP $659,759 in attorneys' fees for winning a suit alleging California's chief fiscal officer had illegally withheld automatic raises from 3,000 active and retired state judges, roughly half of what Skadden argued its work was worth.

NJ Agency Must Face Suit Over Worker Classification Laws

A New Jersey federal judge on Tuesday refused to toss a trucking company's lawsuit contending that state statutes classifying its drivers as employees, rather than independent contractors, violate federal law, rejecting the state labor commissioner's arguments that a related administrative dispute precludes the litigation.

PRIVACY & CONSUMER PROTECTION

China Told Cybersecurity Regs Will Hobble Foreign Insurers

More than two dozen business groups in North America, Asia and Europe urged the head of China's insurance regulator to not adopt a set of cybersecurity rules, saying Wednesday that several provisions would put foreign institutions at a disadvantage to local insurers.

FCC Can't Impose ISP Privacy Rules, Small Providers Say

The Federal Communications Commission does not have the authority to slap internet service providers with privacy rules, a trade group of small and medium-sized cable operators has told the FCC, saying the proposed rules would also be deeply burdensome to the hundreds of small providers it represents.

Ruling Could Make Chicago Mayor's Private Emails Public

An Illinois state court judge ruled Tuesday that Chicago Mayor Rahm Emanuel cannot assert a blanket privacy exemption to the Illinois Freedom of Information Act in order to withhold emails and texts stored on his personal devices, potentially leaving the communications open to being read by the public.

GOVERNMENT CONTRACTS

SBA Makes Major Small-Biz Contracting Tweaks

The U.S. Small Business Administration finalized a rule Tuesday with a host of tweaks to federal small-business contracting regulations, including clarifying the agency's “nonmanufacturer” and business affiliation rules and easing subcontracting limits and requirements for how joint ventures can qualify as small businesses.

No End In Sight For Ill. Budget Crisis

After the Illinois General Assembly reached the end of the spring legislative session without a budget for the second year in a row, there’s little reason to believe that the stalemate will end before the beginning of the next fiscal year, experts say.

INTERNATIONAL TRADE

CFTC Lets Shanghai Exchange Off Hook For Not Registering

The U.S. Commodity Futures Trading Commission’s clearinghouse oversight arm said Tuesday it will not recommend action against the Shanghai Clearing House for not registering with the agency, on the condition the Chinese exchange applies for a permanent exemption from Commodity Exchange Act requirements within six months.

China, US Slated To Roll Out Formal Ivory Trade Ban

The ivory trade will feature as a hot topic of discussion in Beijing next week as the United States and China meet to discuss how much progress they’ve made on implementing a nearly complete ban on both legal and illegal trading, Catherine Novelli, U.S. undersecretary of state for economic growth, energy and the environment, told reporters Tuesday.

TAX

OECD Seeks Input On Treaty Changes To Fight Tax Evasion

The Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development announced Tuesday that it is soliciting public comments on the creation of a multilateral instrument to modify bilateral tax treaties in connection with its efforts to combat tax base erosion and profit shifting.

Illinois Senate Unanimous In Vote Against Tampon Tax

Illinois lawmakers decided to abolish the so-called tampon tax on feminine hygiene products after the state’s senate unanimously passed the bill on Tuesday.

Wal-Mart's Tax Suit Shouldn't Have Proceeded, 1st Circ. Told

The government of Puerto Rico blasted a federal court for preventing it from collecting an alternative corporate income tax from a Wal-Mart subsidiary, telling the First Circuit on Tuesday that the court improperly assumed jurisdiction over the retailer’s suit challenging the tax.

IMMIGRATION

Conservative Groups Seek Rehearing In Ariz. License Suit

A handful of conservative groups urged the Ninth Circuit on Tuesday to rehear a ruling permanently blocking Arizona from refusing to issue driver's licenses to so-called Dreamers on the grounds that the state had encroached the federal government's exclusive power to classify immigrants, saying only Congress, not agency policy, preempts state laws.

NATIVE AMERICAN

IHS Seeks Tribes' Input On Health Program Expansion

The Indian Health Service said Wednesday it will reach out to Native American tribes for suggestions on the potential expansion of a community health program in Alaska to federally and tribally run health facilities nationwide.

TELECOMMUNICATIONS

Public Needs More Insight On FCC Proposals, O'Rielly Says

Republican Federal Communications Commissioner Michael O'Rielly increased his calls Tuesday to reform the agency's proposal process, urging the FCC to change how it handles more-minor proposals and saying the public should have more and earlier insight on changes before the agency acts on them.

FCC Names Auction Transition Head, Shakes Up GC Staff

The Federal Communications Commission's deputy chair for the Telecommunications Bureau will take over the post-incentive auction transition as a deputy chair for the auction's task force, the agency announced Wednesday, one of several staff moves at the commission.

Media Writers Urge FCC To Protect Ads In Set-Top Box Plan

A union representing writers for TV, radio and film has told Federal Communications Commission officials that its plan to unlock the TV set-top box would help content creators but that benefit could be jeopardized if the commission fails to bar third-party devices from altering or replacing embedded advertising.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

Democrats And Republicans Unite To Challenge TCPA

In a recent Law360 Expert Analysis article, we predicted that the Federal Communications Commission's restrictions on the communication of important information to cellphone users would be challenged for burdening far more speech than is necessary to serve any significant governmental interest. Now, a spate of recent suits has motivated a serious First Amendment challenge to the Telephone Consumer Protection Act in a new context — political calling, say Bradley Andreozzi and Justin Kay of Drinker Biddle & Reath LLP.

The Latest Roadblock For Insider Trading Enforcement

In U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission v. Committee on Ways and Means, the Second Circuit will address the scope of the speech or debate clause in connection with an insider trading investigation involving developments in health care legislation. But regardless of which side prevails, the clause's protections will likely limit insider trading allegations linked to legislative channels, say Justin Shur and Lauren Weinstein of MoloLamken LLP.

Beverly Hills Could Drive Autonomous Vehicle Revolution

On your next visit to Beverly Hills, California, the driver of your shuttle might be a software program. Small affluent cities like Beverly Hills are ideally situated to move the low-speed urban component of the autonomous vehicle landscape forward, and the city's forthcoming driverless shuttle program could incentivize other cities to follow suit, says John Swenson at the Scali Law Firm.

The Resurrection Of The Miscellaneous Tariff Bill

There is every reason to hope that, by reviving the Miscellaneous Tariff Bill, the new American Manufacturing Competitiveness Act of 2016 has created an efficient and transparent process for identifying hundreds of nuisance tariffs that are needless burdens on the U.S. economy, say Greg Mastel and Jennifer McCadney at Kelley Drye & Warren LLP.

Defining Proportionality: Amended Rule 26's First 6 Months

Case law from the first six months after the amendments to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 26(b)(1) shows that while courts will limit the scope of discovery when it is truly disproportionate to the needs of the case, they will also order production of easy-to-obtain information, says Samantha Southall at Buchanan Ingersoll & Rooney PC.
